

TURKS RUSH MILITARY PREPARATIONS AFTER SPURNING HITLER'S 'PROTECTION'

BOMBS TAKE EFFECT—German bombs, rained from the air, strike a ship described by Nazi sources as the "Langlesgerse" at a spot "about 180 miles west of Ireland." Lloyd's Register lists a British freighter, the "Langlesgerse," 4,524 tons. The same weight was assigned the sunk boat by the Germans, but no "Langlesgerse" is listed by Lloyd's.

RESULTS OF HIT—A steam pipe had burst when this picture of the damaged vessel was made. The explosion followed a hit by bombs from a German air attack, official Nazi sources said in releasing the photographs.

MORE STEAM—Pouring from the burst steam pipes, the cloud of vapor increases, engulfing the crippled ship. The German described the ship as an "enemy freighter" sunk by the Nazi flying forces.

TORN ASUNDER—Helpless against the attack of the Nazi war-birds, the freighter's boiler explodes, tearing the ship apart. Only minutes before the first Nazi bomb was rained on the vessel.

HORIZON CLEARS—After the explosion the cloud of steam and smoke that had surrounded the wounded seacraft after its steam pipes burst and its boiler exploded, began to clear away.

QUICK WORK—Only eight minutes after the air attack started, the German sources said, the ship, broken apart, sinks in the sea off the coast of Ireland. There have been no recent reports on the whereabouts or activity of the "Langlesgerse," but its sinking has not been confirmed.

Nazis Offer Ankara Regime Safety From 'Designs' of Russians

Turkey Spurns Suggestion To Act as Intermediary To Make Peace Between Italy and Greece.

By The Associated Press.

ANKARA, Turkey, March 4.—An urgent message from Adolf Hitler—intimating, said highly-placed persons, that the Nazis wanted to look after Turkey's "interest and well-being"—was delivered dramatically to the Turkish president today, but official quarters declared it would have little effect on the pro-British policy of this country.

Crisis Today Is Worse Than 1933--F.D.R.

President Feels No Different as Ninth Year Begins.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The man in the White House, beginning a ninth year in office, said today his country faces a crisis in some ways more serious for its future than the one which existed eight years ago.

President Roosevelt asserted that personally he felt no different from at any other time in those eight years. But now, he told a press conference, a world crisis instead of a domestic crisis confronts the nation.

When he became President on March 4, 1933, America was stumbling along the trough of a depression.

Birth of "New Deal."

In an effort to restore a "more abundant life," the new administration started off by declaring a bank holiday eight years ago tonight. Then it hurled favorite shibboleths aside, took legislative steps never before tried, and embarked on the "New Deal."

Now the problems confronting the unprecedented third Roosevelt administration are largely those born of war flaming on three continents.

In the British aid bill the administration again has broken precedent, to urge a program which its advocates say will write the best insurance for peace and opponents contend will push the country into war.

Defense Emphasized.

Currently the emphasis is on defense and aid to Britain. Most of the so-called brain trust and all but three of the 10 members of the original Roosevelt cabinet no longer hold government positions.

The advisers who now troop into the White House most frequently are those who play the leading roles in international affairs or in the gigantic attempt to make America's defenses mighty.

Tokyo Demands 'Final Answer' From Vichy on Proposal Today

TOKYO, March 4.—(AP)—A second deadline giving France until noon tomorrow to submit a "final answer" to Japanese proposals for settlement of the border dispute between French Indo-China and Thailand was indicated tonight by Domei, Japanese news agency.

The new time limit was believed set by Foreign Minister Matsuo at an inconclusive, 40-minute conference today with French Ambassador Henry, the news agency said.

Japanese quarters admitted a setback to their efforts to settle the controversy swiftly. A twice-extended armistice will expire Friday night.

The foreign minister and the French envoy discussed a modified plan advanced by Japan. The modifications were not disclosed.

The Thai government's agreement to the new Japanese plan was reported already in Japanese hands.

France's yes or no was expected to be given Matsuo at another conference with the French ambassador tomorrow.

Vichy dispatches indicating the French government had bowed to the Japanese proposals were prominently displayed in the Japanese press.

Precautionary troop movements are continuing in Indo-China, Saigon dispatches said today. A Japanese cruiser remained at Saigon and a Japanese liner stood by to remove Japanese civilians.

Union 'Racket' on Defense Jobs Charged in Committee Report

Bill To Incorporate Labor Groups Seen as Result.

By LUKE GREENE.

Discriminations against citizens of Georgia by certain labor unions and their officials and the failure of a nonunion man to obtain work after he had paid union dues is "in effect a racket," a special house investigation committee said in a report submitted to the general assembly yesterday.

The report showed that on all national defense projects citizens have been refused work because they were not members of a union. The committee also reported that in many cases the workman did not get a job even after he had paid all or part of his initiation fee and that the initiation fee was not refunded.

The committee recommended no legislation for improving the situation, but Representative Roscoe Pickett Jr., of Pickens, a member of the committee, said he would introduce a bill this morning calling for the incorporation of labor unions and providing they could sue and be sued. Representative E. E. Yawns of Dodge, also a member of the committee, said his name would be on the bill, too.

"If the workman failed to secure a job after payment of initiation fee and the labor union refused to return the amount paid as his initiation fee, then this is in effect a racket," the committee report said.

The three-page report was submitted after a three weeks' study of labor conditions in Georgia by the six-man committee of the legislature.

"A large number of skilled workmen were turned away and not allowed to work because of their inability to pay the necessary initiation fee to join a union, it being necessary to hold a union card as a requisite to employment, and where the workman paid his initiation fee did not always there-

Site at Macon Chosen for New Flying School

$2,094,000 Contracts Will Give Jobs to 2,500 Men.

Designation of a site near Macon for a large Army flying school was disclosed yesterday with announcement by the War Department that contracts amounting to $2,094,000 for construction of the airport had been awarded to three Atlanta firms.

To be known as Flying School No. 1, the new Army project will be on a tract of 1,000 acres eight miles southeast of Macon, just off the Perry highway. There will be one huge hangar and a number of smaller buildings, which will house the planned personnel of 3,000 officers and men.

Grading has begun, and United States engineers, armed with a federal court order giving them possession of the required land, have ordered actual construction. The field will have two 5,000-foot runways and is expected to be completed by June 7. Between 2,500 and 3,000 men will be employed on the project. The school will be used solely for primary flight training, with subsequent training at other air schools.

According to the War Department announcement, contracts were awarded, on a basis of cost-plus-fixed-fee, to the following companies: MacDougal Construction Company, Griffin Construction Company and Nonnemaker-Clayton Construction Company. The J. B. McCrary Engineering Corporation was designated as architect and engineers.

The government took possession of the land after District Judge Bascom S. Deaver signed a condemnation order. The United States attorney's office at Macon filed the condemnation proceedings in the form of a "declaration of taking" against 20 owners and 14 separate tracts of land.

It was pointed out the condemnation proceedings permit the government to begin work without the delay which would result if engineers were forced to wait until each landowner had come to a satisfactory agreement.

Four More Days To Join Garden Competition

$1,000 Constitution Contest Brings Flood of Mail.

By BETTY MATHIS.

With only four more days left to enter the $1,000 Constitution-sponsored Yard and Garden contest, amateur gardeners of Atlanta are keeping the telephones of the garden department busy turning in their entries in this, the biggest contest of its kind ever offered to residents of Greater Atlanta.

Mails, too, are heavy, with each delivery bringing contest entry blanks from all parts of the city and suburbs.

But in spite of the large number of entries which are coming in each day, there are hundreds of Atlantans who have requested entry blanks who have not yet returned them. To those people, and to those who want to enter the contest but have not yet done so—just a word of warning: Entries close next Saturday, March 8.

Four More Days.

Only four more days remain in which to enter the contest for attractive cash prizes. Entries postmarked after midnight, March 8, will not be accepted. The garden department will remain open Saturday afternoon and evening to take entries by telephone.

Rules of the contest are easy. There is no entry fee. You don't have to get any subscriptions. There is nothing to buy. There are no obligations other than that you make an honest effort to improve the surroundings of your home or business property.

An official entry blank will be found in this issue of The Constitution. To compete in the contest which is based on improve-

$52,000 Doctor Scholarship Fund Proposed

Bill Would Provide Physicians To Serve Rural Sections.

An annual scholarship fund of $52,000 to be set up for Georgia medical students who promise to practice four years after their graduation in some rural area of the state designated by the regents is sought by a bill to be introduced this week in the senate.

Sponsored by Chancellor S. V. Sanford, head of the University System, the measure is an initial step toward providing adequate medical service for those communities which either do not, or cannot support a sufficient number of doctors.

The plan would preclude any critical shortage of physicians which might be brought on by future demands of the Army on the medical profession.

The regents would select every September one premedical student from each of the state's 52 senatorial districts who would be given $1,000 to use during his four-year course at the Georgia Medical College in Augusta.

By accepting the scholarship a student would agree to practice four years in whatever section of

Two Atlanta Salesmen Are Asphyxiated

Columbus Coroner's Jury Finds Deaths Are Accidental.

A coroner's jury in Columbus yesterday returned a verdict of accidental asphyxiation in the death of two elderly Atlanta shoe salesmen.

The men—J. C. Probasco, of 63 Georgia avenue, and W. H. Underwood, of a downtown hotel address—were found dead Monday night in a Columbus rooming house. A heater was going full blast when the bodies were discovered, Columbus police said, and all the oxygen in the room had been exhausted.

Mrs. Eliza A. Wells, with whom Probasco boarded here, said both men were salesmen for the Ortho-Vent Shoe Company, of Salem, Va., and always traveled together.

She said Probasco is survived by a daughter, Mrs. R. D. Robinson, of Orlando, Fla., and a son, of Clinton, N. J. She said Underwood has a wife, now living in North Carolina, and two sons, both of Atlanta.

Couple Admit Taking Aged Woman's Cash

Court Orders Repayment of $2,200 Life Savings.

A married couple, charged with stealing $2,200 from an 80-year-old woman boarder in their home, yesterday entered pleas of guilty in Fulton superior court and were sentenced to 54 months on probation provided they repay the old lady.

They were Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Kerlin, of a Georgia avenue address, accused of taking the life savings of Mrs. C. R. Brown, who rented a room from them. More than $1,000 of the $2,200 was recovered by police and Mr. and Mrs. Kerlin yesterday agreed to pay Mrs. Brown back at the rate of $23.50 per month.

In her sworn statement, Mrs. Kerlin said she discovered Mrs. Brown's cache of cash while looking for her cat. It was in a brown paper sack, wrapped up in rags, she said.

She and her husband took a trip to Florida with a chauffeur, started buying a house, and purchased many clothes and a new rifle with part of the money, Mrs. Kerlin said.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey imposed the installment plan repayment sentence when E. E. Andrews, assistant solicitor, recommended it. He said Mrs. Brown needed the money and that restitution in this case was more important than sending the Kerlins to prison where they could not repay.

British Explosives Sent To U. S. on Dutch Liner

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—The Dutch liner Edam arrived today from Liverpool with a quantity of British explosives sent to the U. S. Army and Navy for experimental purposes.

Slipping into the harbor unannounced with 29 passengers, the 8,871-ton liner was almost to her Hoboken (N. J.) pier when a coast guard vessel halted her and ordered her to proceed to Gravesend bay, where the government superintendent the unloading of explosives.

East guardsmen said the shipment consisted of granulated tetryl, an explosive used for detonating purposes, and some "flares."

Bill To Revamp Housing Units Is Proposed

All Members of Present Authorities Would Be Ousted.

Reorganization of city and county housing authorities in Georgia was proposed yesterday in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Herschel Lovett, of Laurens.

One effect of the bill would be to oust all members of the present city and county authorities, since it provides that their terms will end upon the approval of the act by the Governor.

It provides for the appointment of five-member commissions to take their places, with terms running one, two, three, four and five years. They will receive no compensation and the chairman will be appointed by the mayor in the case of city authorities.

The bill also provides for the establishment of regional authorities, in the event two or more counties want to create one. Each county would have a commissioner to serve for a period of five years.

Britons Dispose Of Steel Stock

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—A block of 203,127 shares of common stock of the United States Steel Corporation was sold quickly after the close of the New York Stock Exchange today and there were indications it may have represented the approximate half-year mark in the liquidation of $950,000,000 in British-owned American securities to raise cash for war supplies.

Dealers participating in the sale said it was the last of the British holdings in the shares of America's "big steel."

One of the largest over-the-counter transactions in listed securities in Wall Street history, it was also the biggest of the publicly known deals in the mass transfer of British holdings to American investors since the war-time shift began in September, 1939.

An extensive syndicate of investment houses and stock exchange firms handled the offering to the public at $57 a share, the final quotation for U. S. Steel on the exchange.

Thirty minutes after the books were opened, a 50 per cent over-subscription was announced.

World Federation Is Urged To Insure Peace After War

Gallup Survey Estimates 20,000,000 Americans Are Already Thinking About End of Strife; Need of Christian Principles Is Stressed.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion. (Copyright, 1941.)

PRINCETON, N. J., March 4.—Among many American leaders greater and greater importance is being attached to the question—what should be done to maintain world peace after the present European war comes to an end?

Because the character of the next peace may determine the safety of the western world for many decades, the American Institute of Public Opinion has put the problem up to the people in the form of a national survey.

The Institute asked two questions in its survey: The first was: "Have you given any thought to what should be done to maintain world peace after the present European war is over?"

Results show that approximately one-third of the nation's 60,000,000 men and women in the voting population—or about 20,000,000 persons—are giving some thought to what should be done to insure a better peace. The largest number were found in the big cities and in the upper and middle income brackets.

Those persons who said they had been thinking about a future peace, were asked:

"In your opinion, what should be done?"

Three principal items of interest emerge from an analysis of the many suggestions and ideas put forward by voters in the survey.

1. The largest number—about 8,000,000 voters, the survey indicates—lean toward some sort of international federation of countries either along the League of Nations principle or some variation of that principle. In order of frequency, these suggestions are: A revived and strengthened League of Nations with some sort of international police force; a "United States of Europe," a plan put forward many years ago by the French statesman Aristide Briand; and a "union of democracies" or a "world union" such as that suggested by Clarence Streit in "Union Now."

2. The second largest group believes the future peace of the world depends on moral, social and political reform both inside individual nations and in relations between nations. These people call for better understanding among nations, based on tolerance and Christian principles; getting rid of dictatorships and giving "the people a voice"; and economic readjustments to provide a better division of world resources, removal of trade barriers and sharing of colonies.

3. Since a similar survey a year ago, there has been some increase in the number of people who would propose dismemberment of Germany as a solution. These argue that Germany should be put under the military control of other nations—assuming of course that Germany is defeated—that her territory should be divided among the victors, and that she should be completely disarmed.

$3,000 Taken From Bank in Talbot County

State Police, Federal Bureau of Investigation Studying Case.

Cracksmen, working with a finesse bespeaking the professional, broke open the safe of the small bank at Junction City, in Talbot county, early yesterday and escaped with loot estimated as high as $3,000.

They forced entry sometime between 2 o'clock and daybreak and invaded the strongbox by applying an acetylene torch to the lock.

It was believed the operators had come quietly into town late at night by automobile, after having previously chartered or "cased" the job, and departed as quietly at its conclusion.

State police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were notified. Since the bank was a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the burglary automatically fell under federal law.

Japan Assures London of Her Peace Desires

Tokyo Won't Challenge Britain in Far East, Envoy Declares.

LONDON, March 4.—(AP)—Conciliatory assurances that Japan has no intention of challenging Great Britain in the Far East were reported today by Ambassador Shigemitsu in a half-hour conference with Prime Minister Churchill.

The well-informed press association, British News Agency, pointedly said Shigemitsu asked for the conference and then reported the gist of their conversation.

The press association called attention to the fact the Australian premier, R. G. Menzies, now in England, made a statement yesterday declaring friendship with Japan was not impossible, and said Shigemitsu's request for an interview with Churchill quickly followed.

Menzies' statement, however, met unfavorable reception in Australia.

(Some members of the advisory war council in Australia said it was difficult to understand Menzies' attitude in view of Japan's part in the Axis.)

It was reported Shigemitsu handed to Churchill a detailed reply from Foreign Minister Matsuo to a British memorandum of February 25.

R. A. Butler, British undersecretary for foreign affairs, on that date said Britain had rejected Japanese hints of mediation in the European war and declared she is fighting for a cause in which there can be "no question of compromise or parity."

In his second conference with Churchill within a fortnight, Shigemitsu was reported by the press association to have "stressed that Japan's policy is not a challenge to Britain's interests in the Far East and that she does not wish the European war to spread there."

The talk, said the news agency, was "regarded as satisfactory from both the British and Japanese viewpoints."

Later, however the press association (probably at the request of the foreign office) asked its clients to delete this quotation.

Lawyer Failed To Pay Fine, Pappas Says

Pat Avery Denies Claim He Was Given Money for Payment.

A charge that Pat Avery, lawyer, was given $50 with which to pay a fine imposed in a conditional pardon granted by Governor Rivers and that the fine was not paid, was made yesterday in a habeas corpus petition filed by Toney G. Pappas, convicted in Fulton criminal court of lottery last year.

Pappas claimed he gave Avery $200, of which $150 was to be attorney fees for obtaining the pardon and $50 with which to pay the fine.

Avery denied that any part of the money paid him by Pappas was for a fine and declared he had four witnesses that he told Pappas to pay the fine himself to Sheriff J. C. Aldredge.

Pappas' petition for a habeas corpus writ is to be heard at 2 o'clock this afternoon. He was arrested last week when his bond was called for forfeiture in the campaign being conducted by Solicitor Bond Almond to force holders of conditional pardons to serve their original sentences when they do not comply with the provisions of the pardon.

Industrialists To Study Defense Here March 19

A "defense clinic" of Georgia industrialists, which published reports said would be held here today, will be held on Wednesday, March 19, sponsors of the conference said yesterday.

Sponsored by the Cotton Manufacturers' Association, the Associated Industries of Georgia, and the National Association of Manufacturers, the conference will study the results of a recently completed survey of Georgia's potential defense production activities.

Kiwanians See Speech School Demonstration

Work With Deaf Persons by Junior League Is Shown.

Methods of instruction and accomplishments of Atlanta's Junior League speech school were demonstrated by child students to Atlanta Kiwanians at their luncheon Tuesday.

Mrs. William G. Hamm, member of the Atlanta Junior League and former member of the teaching staff of the Central Institute for the Deaf at St. Louis, presented the demonstration with the assistance of Miss Costello and Miss Heim, instructors at the school, and Mrs. James Pittman, one of the volunteer Junior League workers.

Types Vary. "There are many types of speech handicaps," Mrs. Hamm explained. "Speech is normally acquired by imitating what is heard; therefore, any loss in hearing will result in imperfect speech. When the hearing is lost completely, unless training is given as soon as possible the victim will lose his speech and become as if born deaf."

"It is erroneous to say 'deaf and dumb,'" she continued. "There are few who are pathologically unable to speak. The vocal mechanism in a deaf child is as normal as yours or mine. He has to be reached by some means other than his ear."

Speech Is Aim. "If a deaf child is taught the sign language he can then only communicate with those who also know this language. If he learns lip reading and develops a voice he can then take his place in the world with normal people. This is our aim."

Demonstrations with deaf and partially deaf children ranging in age from four to ten years were made to the Kiwanians, showing voice reproduction of words by feeling the sound, by articulation from pictures, and by lip-reading.

Officials of Distributors Committee Accused by D. J. Lamb.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 4.—(AP) D. J. Lamb, operator of a Richmond county night spot, instituted a $50,000 damage suit in superior court here today against officials of the Brewers and Beer Distributors Committee of Georgia.

Named in the suit were: Henry Federwitz, Chatham county; John S. Wood, state director of the committee, Cherokee county; W. C. Pitner, Clarke county; J. F. Gordon, Fulton county, and Joseph J. Fine, also of Fulton.

The night club operator alleges Wood employed undercover men to spy on persons engaged in the sale of beer. A false and malicious report filed by such agents against him, Lamb charges, resulted in his license being revoked by the state revenue commissioner. As evidence of the "malicious" content of the report, he further stated, the commissioner later restored his license.

Change in Navy Replacement Rule Proposed

Vinson Measure Would Let President Decide New Craft Type.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP) The Navy asked congress today for authority to replace old warships with whatever type of combat vessel the President deemed in the best interests of national defense. Old battleships, for instance, could be replaced by an equal tonnage of destroyers, cruisers or submarines.

Chairman Vinson, Democrat, of Georgia, of the House Naval Committee, promptly introduced the necessary legislation.

In requesting the authority, the Navy Department said that under existing law "replacements for battleships must be battleships, replacements for destroyers must be destroyers, and so on."

Vinson also offered legislation empowering the President to acquire 200,000 tons of auxiliary vessels for national defense purposes.

Still another bill was introduced by Vinson in line with previously indicated plans to increase the Navy's strength. The measure would increase the enlisted personnel to 222,000 from the present authorized strength of 192,000 and empower the President to raise the limit to 300,000.

Supply Chiefs Of Army Posts To Gather Here

Fourth Corps Area Quartermasters Plan Conference.

A conference of all post, camp and station quartermasters of the Fourth Corps Area will be held in Atlanta beginning at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and continuing through Saturday, it was announced yesterday.

The conference will be held in the office of Brigadier General James L. Frink, Fourth Corps Area quartermaster, in the Hurt building, and will take up new means and methods of expediting business of the quartermaster corps as well as the new field ration prescribed by the War Department effective May 1.

The new field ration was authorized by the corps area several months ago and is, with certain modifications, being used by a number of the larger posts, including Fort Benning, Camp Shelby, Camp Livingston and Fort McClellan.

By the end of June, it was said, the monthly mess bill for the eight states comprising the Fourth Corps Area, will be approximately $6,000,000.

Under the field ration system, according to a War Department announcement, bookkeeping will be greatly simplified, better food and menus will be provided, and a 2-cent saving on each ration will permit purchase of fresh fruits and vegetables, special seasonings, pepper sauces, extracts, flavorings, etc., not otherwise possible.

Besides the field ration, the officers will discuss personal equipment, supply of clothing, motor vehicles, rail transportation and maintenance and operations of buildings and utilities for which the quartermaster corps is responsible.

Dinner for visitors. A dinner for the visitors will be held tomorrow night at the Officers' Club, Fort McPherson.

The following quartermasters will attend:

Captain William E. Means, Parkdale Field; Lieutenant Colonel Edward W. Lochmiller, Fort Barrancas; Major George E. Bare, Camp Beauregard; Colonel James R. Allente, Fort Benning; Major Harry Cullins, Camp Blanding; Lieutenant Colonel Samuel L. Zetner, Fort Bragg.

Greeks Capture Tanks, 165 Men

ATHENS, March 5.—(Wednesday)—Greek troops fighting on the mountainous central front in Albania captured two tanks and 165 Italian prisoners, the high command announced today.

One Italian tank was destroyed in yesterday's battles which also yielded a quantity of Italian antitank and antiaircraft guns, the Greeks said.

British Foreign Secretary Eden and General Dill, imperial general staff chief, had further talks yesterday with Greek leaders on the subject of prospective British aid to Greece and other consequences of Germany's occupation of neighboring Bulgaria.

ITALIANS WILL SPURN NEGOTIATED PEACE

ROME, March 4.—(UP)—Italy refuses to enter into any negotiated peace with Greece and is determined to achieve a "complete military settlement," informed Fascist quarters said today in reply to reports abroad of Axis pressure against the Greeks.

Reports of a possible Italo-Greek armistice are "tendentious and impossible to take seriously," it was stated.

Hapeville Council Backs Land Gift

Efforts to restrain the city of Hapeville from giving the county board of education a plot of ground for a Hapeville high school playground failed to get support from the Hapeville city council last night when the matter was brought up for reconsideration.

A motion by Councilman A. Hilsman to ask the county board of education to return the deed to the property failed to get a second, so as far as Hapeville city council is concerned the transfer of the deed goes through as passed. Mayor Eugene King said.

Next action must be taken by a Fulton superior court on a petition filed by Brown Tyler, publisher of several weekly newspapers in Fulton county, seeking to prevent the board of education from accepting the deed and the Hapeville council from giving it away, on the ground that the plot was given to Hapeville for a park and council has no right to dispose of it.

The council also voted last night to give the Hapeville American Legion a plot of land approximately 100 by 200 feet, opposite the Hapeville High school. A Legion clubhouse is to be built on the land.

Italians Facing New Drives by British Forces

Duce Has Lost 150,000 Soldiers in Africa, Cairo Reveals.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 4.—(AP)—The Italians in Ethiopia faced invasion from virtually all frontiers tonight after the British announced a new thrust in a northwestern direction from Italian Somaliland.

In Cairo, officials declared 150,000 prisoners already had been taken in North and East Africa.

The British reported the capture of two more Italian strongholds, Iscia Baidor and Buloburti 170 miles north and northwest of Mogadiscio, Somaliland capital, and an advance to the vicinity of the Ethiopian frontier.

The main British thrust was developing between the valleys of the Juba and Webbe Shebell rivers, in the general direction of Harar.

Military jurisdiction over captured Somaliland and Ethiopian territory was proclaimed in London with Lieutenant General Cunningham, British middle west commander, named as governor.

Refusal to enter into any negotiated peace with Greece and is determined to achieve a "complete military settlement," informed Fascist quarters said today in reply to reports abroad of Axis pressure against the Greeks.

Reports of a possible Italo-Greek armistice are "tendentious and impossible to take seriously," it was stated.

Average Farm Increases 17 Acres in Ten Years

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP) The Census Bureau said today the size of the average American farm increased 17 acres in the 1930-40 decade.

In last year's census, the average was found to be 174 acres, compared with 156.9 in 1930 and 154.8 in 1935.

The increase was attributed by officials to the merging of farms in the midwest due to the droughts, increasing mechanization of farming, higher taxes and lower farm prices.

Dog Credited With Aiding in Solving Crime

Leaps at Youth Accused of Attempting To Rob Home.

Possibly they'll pin a medal on Pal, the police dog belonging to William Jenkins, 536 North avenue, who was shot on a night last October when he thwarted a burglar who attempted to rob the Jenkins household.

City Detectives J. E. Helms and H. E. Burdette yesterday credited Pal with establishing beyond question the identity of Charlie Murray, 14-year-old Negro, as the youth who shot Pal and tried to rob the Jenkins house. And to make it doubly certain Murray, when taken to confront Pal, confessed the shooting and admitted as well membership with a ring of 12 Negroes who between October, 1940, and February 24, 1941, committed 72 burglaries in Atlanta homes, grocery stores, service stations, eating houses and other establishments.

Suspecting Murray, the detectives on Monday night took him to the Jenkins home. Pal at once recognized the Negro and for a time the detectives said the Jenkins family was unable to control the dog. He attempted to break from their hands and attack the Negro. Finally overcome Pal was locked in a room, but when Murray saw that the dog had not forgotten him he confessed, the detectives said, that he shot the animal when Pal surprised him prowling in the Jenkins home.

The dog made no attempt to attack two other Negroes whom the police had taken to the Jenkins home last night after the British announced a new thrust in a northwestern direction from Italian Somaliland.

In solving the long list of petty burglaries in which the total loot amounted to between $4,500 and $5,000, the police said they arrested five Negroes whose ages range from 17 to 27 years and seven between the ages of 12 and 15.

The older Negroes, according to the police, selected the places to be robbed and provided transportation for the younger members of the gang who actually entered the places and took the loot, most of which consisted of money from juke boxes and cigarette machines, candy, gum, groceries, guns and some jewelry.

The police have in custody Arthur Trice, listed as operating a restaurant at 585 Edgewood avenue, who is booked on a charge of receiving stolen goods. They charge that Trice was the fence for the gang and was engaged in disposing of the stolen property.

Members of the gang confessed to having robbed the home of City Detective G. F. Barrett three times and said they obtained $400 worth of jewelry and pistols.

With the confessions the mystery of the robbery of a restaurant adjoining the Atlanta theater was cleared up. When the place was robbed the police were never able to determine the method by which the burglars had entered. One of the gang confessed that he slid down a vent pipe to gain admittance.

London Severs Relations With Bulgaria Today

Dutch, Polish, Belgian Envoys Will Depart With Rendel.

SOFIA, March 5.—(Wednesday) (AP)—The diplomatic break between Great Britain and Bulgaria was scheduled for 10 a. m. (Sofia time) today in a move British Minister Rendel described as "the first step toward dragging Bulgaria into war."

On instruction from British Foreign Minister Eden, now in Athens, Rendel worked far into the morning on the note he will present to Foreign Minister Popoff this forenoon with a request for his passports.

Heads of the Dutch, Polish and Belgian legations planned to follow the British minister with similar notices of ruptured relations. It was disclosed that British nationals have been instructed to get out of neighboring Yugoslavia, indicating their government officials expect that Balkan nation to be lined up with the Axis within a few days.

The Britons were told to flee the country by way of Salonika, Greece, for Istanbul, Turkey.

Rendel's path to the foreign office will be jammed with Nazi tanks, armored cars, troops and transport trucks which have been streaming through the capital en route to the Greek and Turkish frontiers since Bulgaria formally joined the Axis lineup last Saturday.

Earlier, Rendel had informed United States Minister Earle of the pending break in relations and Earle instructed the American legation to be prepared to take over British affairs.

A special train was ordered tomorrow afternoon to take out the 53 British officials and newspapermen still in this country. Aboard the same train will be members of the Polish, Belgian and Dutch legations.

More than 100 small pursuit ships, of German origin and bearing Bulgarian markings, were lined up on a new emergency airport here.

Main highways and rail lines were choked with German troop trains, heavy tanks, armored cars and artillery.

Prison Cruelty Probe Sought By Legislator

Representative Tells of Finding Man With Feet Frozen.

Investigation of alleged mistreatment of a Negro prisoner by the warden of a Newton county prison camp was demanded in the house yesterday by Representative Marvin Allison, of Gwinnett.

Allison said that while he and other legislators were visiting Tattall prison last weekend, he found the Negro prisoner, Henry Woodward, confined to the hospital with his feet frozen. He was taken to Tattall for treatment.

Members of the legislature, Allison said, were informed by the prisoner that on a minor charge of disobedience he was ordered by the warden to be placed in the "dog house" or "hole" on Monday morning, the early part of January, 1941, and kept there without heat or sufficient clothing to keep warm, only bread and water for food, until the following Saturday night.

"Information, from other sources than the prisoner, as well as the circumstances connected therewith, are in the name of justice and decency, sufficient to demand that an investigation be made as to this matter and that if found to be true, the warden responsible should be removed," and that he be brought immediately into a court of proper jurisdiction to answer for this cruel offense," declared a resolution offered by Allison.

The resolution asked that a committee of five be appointed to make the investigation and report back to the house in 10 days on the truthfulness of the charges.

Speaker Randall Evans Jr. referred the resolution to the Committee on Penitentiaries.

The testimony was offered to the Senate Agriculture Committee during consideration of a bill by Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, to increase farm income by boosting the loan value advanced by the government on these crops.

When the loan official testified that the government now had more than 11,000,000 bales of cotton piled up under the loan program, Chairman Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, interrupted to say "then we don't need to plant any crop this year."

Farrington testified that the government's commodity corporation had taken title to 6,183,472 bales of loan cotton with a "book value" of $364,858,960 and had loans outstanding on another 2,918,422 bales valued at $238,671,459.

He said the corn loan program offered a similar picture with the corporation holding more than 200,000,000 bushels valued at more than $150,000,000 and loans outstanding on another 225,000,000 bushels valued at more than $182,000,000.

Georgia Pays Debts To Public Schools

The Atlanta public school system yesterday was $235,958.50 richer when the new state administration paid a three-year-old state school debt.

A check for the full amount, representing 1938-39 payments due the local school system, brought state payments up to date. Several times in the past three years school administration leaders all but abandoned any hope that the sum would be paid.

Two other monthly payments from the state funds amounting to $79,000 each have been received.

Solon Asks State To Halt Naval Stores Operations

Representative Willoughby, of Clinch, wants the state prison in Tattall county to cease working the state's 7,000 pine trees for turpentine and rosin and manufacture of boxes instead.

He offered a resolution yesterday calling for prison officials to employ labor now used in the pine forests on the prison farm.

584,000 WPA Employees To Feel Ax Before June

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP) Work Projects Administration officials indicated today that 584,000 persons would be stricken from WPA employment rolls by June.

They added that a formal announcement likely would be made Thursday.

Drastic payroll cuts, these officials declared, were necessary to keep within the $375,000,000 supplemental relief appropriation which congress recently authorized for March, April, May and June.

The March work-relief enrollment average was estimated at approximately 1,762,000, compared with a current 1,884,000. Thereafter, officials said, successive reductions would bring enrollment down each month until the June total hits an all-time low of about 1,300,000.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 5, 1941.

Filibuster of Death

It is now recognized that the minority opposition to the lease-lend bill is conducting a filibuster in the United States senate. The little group of isolationists are deliberately attempting to delay to the last possible moment enactment of the bill which involves the safety of this country. While the fate of the free nations of the world, including our own, must be decided within the next few months, at most, these stubborn men spout forth their illogicalities. While the dictators of the totalitarian nations work to create a new form of world in which our democracy could not live, a little handful of blind fatalists fill with meaningless words the hours which could be used for the saving of liberty.

It is incontrovertible fact that, once Britain succumbs to the force of the Nazi arms, there will be nothing on earth which can save this country from economic subjugation to the Nazi idea. And, once in the economic thrall, it will be the easiest thing imaginable for world triumphant Nazism to add the erstwhile free America to the miserable line of shackled, subject nations.

Imagine, if you will, a Nazi Germany controlling with inexorable will all of Europe and of Britain. Turn your eyes to Latin America and wonder to which power those nations will turn their friendship. South America produces, almost entirely, the same products which the United States produces. It must find a market for those products. It cannot find that market in this country, for we must consume our own products. Latin America must, therefore, look to Europe for the place to sell her own grain and meat and cotton and other crops.

It is impossible for any nation to sell in one place and buy in another. Where the sales are made, there must be the bulk of the purchases be made. Thus, selling to Europe, South America must, perforce, buy the automobiles, the railroad equipment and rolling stock, the steel rails, the machinery and the day-by-day products of the factories, from Europe. Which will mean, once Britain falls, from Germany or from her vassal nations.

Even if this basic principle of international trade were not true, the Nazis, by enforced systems of barter, would see that the same results are brought about.

Thus the United States would be isolated from a hostile world, a world filled with invincible rivals and foes. We would have no export markets for the goods that come from our fields and mines and factories. The isolationists' dream would come true, in dreadful reality.

We should see unemployment so widespread that the worst of the recent depression would appear heavenly in comparison. And, an impoverished and hungry nation, we should be compelled to use the bulk of our remaining wealth to maintain armies and navies of a size never hitherto dreamed in this country.

For, in addition to the economic thralldom, there would be the constant threat of invasion. It would not be necessary for Germany to send troop transports, warships and airplane carriers directly to our own shores. Dominant throughout all South America, it would be the easiest thing imaginable for Germany to foment internal strife in, say, Mexico, to land strong armies of mechanized troops below the Rio Grande, "to restore internal order" and, once there, to prepare and to carry out actual military conquest of the United States, to say nothing of the internal trouble her agents would be fomenting among the jobless, restless, desperate people here.

That is a true picture of the future ahead of this country, unless we can so co-operate with the sole remaining friendly nation, Great Britain, that, with the aid of our supplies, Britain can achieve, once again, the almost miraculous and crush Germany and the forces of Nazism so completely they can never rise again for generations to come.

Working together, Britain in the front line and this country as the great arsenal, the national factory from which pours the mechanical impediments of war, the two great English-speaking nations can save the world from slavery and forever guarantee the right to peace, to freedom and the pursuit of happiness to all men who desire these blessings.

Alone either of the two nations will, in all probability, be overwhelmed.

Each moment of each hour is precious for the cause of victory for Britain and of safety for us.

And we are forced to witness a little group of willful, blind men fritter away precious moments, moments that carry our own national salvation, in a filibuster of words.

Tokyo insists she is cruelly misunderstood; that all this running around with guns is only her high-strung nature. Maybe some parole board will believe it.

Master Traffic Plan

The proposal to create a metropolitan highway authority for Fulton and DeKalb counties, as contained in two constitutional amendments introduced in the general assembly, constitutes just about the most intelligent step yet taken in efforts to solve traffic problems and to provide for the future in Atlanta's metropolitan area.

It is a sane, forward-looking step, with ample safeguards provided to guard against any undesirable use of the power thus delegated to a small group of citizens.

The finest and most progressive cities in the country are so largely because of intelligent planning in years past for the developments foreseen by wise men. Atlanta is not one of these, her present greatness having been achieved rather despite traffic handicaps than because of traffic ease.

It is a commonplace to say that Atlanta streets were originally laid out by following the cowpaths through the wilderness. In some localized instances there has been relief from the inevitable congestion of such streets, but so far it has been impossible to put into effect any coherent, related program for the entire city.

Conservative observers of civic trends are a unit in predicting that it will not be many years before Greater Atlanta boasts a population well above a million persons. This city, undeniably, is destined to remain the metropolis of a rapidly expanding southeast and as the section grows in prosperity the city will, just as surely, grow in size and importance.

To prepare for this growth now is the plain course of wisdom.

The bills introduced provide that, while the authority shall have power to issue bonds up to $25,000,000, none shall be issued until after the voters of the two counties have voted their approval. This should be all the safeguard needed.

The authority shall consist of a board of five, and shall have power to plan arterial highways, to condemn property and to secure rights-of-way and make contracts.

Such an authority would be able to carry out the recommendations of traffic surveys now being made and to create a system of arterial highways through or around Atlanta that would take care of the city traffic load for many years to come.

The Libyan disaster is cleared up nicely in the Duce's latest. It appears the dirty British turned unexpectedly, instead of backing into the knife.

Bombers and Teeth

It is said politics makes strange bedfellows. Defense today is giving politics a run for the money in this respect and even bids fair to out-distance the American favorite sport.

An instance was revealed recently in a news report of a strike in New York, tying up production in a company producing—of all strange combinations—airplane parts and dental equipment.

It is a far cry from the thundering giants of the sky to the delicate instruments of torture that delight even the most careful dentist. Nevertheless, bombers and dentists' drills have been held up by a strike. For the second, most Americans will be willing to wait. But for the first, the bombers, production means world safety.

Women are wonderful. They get colds from everything but standing in a doorway twenty minutes in the dead of winter to speed the parting guest.

The financial trend, as revealed in a column on the new male attire: "Larger checks are favored by college dressers."

A West Virginian barber has shaved one of his clients daily for thirty-four years. How he keeps a keen edge on the conversation is more than we can tell.

Unprecedented problems are to confront our posterity, and we do hope the Boy Scouts have a second course—on how to untie the knots.

THE RECORD ON BRIDGES

(From The Albany Herald.)

Attorney General Jackson has ordered deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, Communist trouble-maker. The FBI has the history of Bridges since he came to this country from Australia catalogued and cross-indexed. The record is impressive, and it proves beyond question that Bridges is a dangerous character, an enemy of government, a preacher of doctrines which seek to undermine the foundations of democracy. The action against Bridges is to be pressed on FBI recommendation.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

CROSSING THE CHANNEL WASHINGTON, March 4.—The predominant school of American military and naval experts is increasingly doubtful that Hitler's spring offensive will take the form of a serious effort to invade the British Isles. The experts have long inclined to believe the German strategy was merely to threaten or feint invasion while attacking Britain's far-flung lifelines in force at every vulnerable point. Although well aware the situation is still highly speculative, they feel that recent events, especially in the Balkans, strongly tend to substantiate their theory.

Their reason is fairly obvious. Hitler has at his disposal about 250 divisions, or an organized and equipped army of 3,000,000 men. Of these 70 are stationed on the Polish frontier as a permanent threat to Russia. Eight are occupying Norway. Six are in Denmark. Between 25 and 30 are noted in the low countries and on the coast of France. Two more are in the Pyrenees on the Spanish border, and at least eight and probably ten are on the Brenner Pass. An unknown number of troops are in Italy, and there are probably several divisions of regulars still doing necessary police duty in Czechoslovakia and other danger spots within the Reich.

Thus at least 120 divisions, and probably 130 or 135, are already accounted for, leaving between 120 and 130 for Hitler's mobile striking force against Britain. But from this total of 115 to 130 divisions must also be subtracted the 50 divisions Hitler has now engaged, with the serious risk of further calls on his resources, in the Balkans. Thus the final total of Hitler's available striking force is only between 65 and 80 divisions.

To the military experts this does not seem sufficient to bring against a Britain where there are now at least 2,000,000 men under arms. Although less than half this total is composed of regular troops, organized into divisions, even the home guards will be fighting on their hearthstones. The spirit of the British people—preparing, for invasion is summed up by an episode from the dark days last summer, informally reported by one of our observers. All weapons in the possession of the people had just been called in by the government. In a house of women a British officer's wife, a friend of the observer's, was making ready to sacrifice her husband's fine sporting gun. And the old nurse in the house sought to stop her with the grim argument, "If you send that, what shall we fight with ourselves?"

STUMPING THE EXPERTS No one doubts Hitler has invested substantial resources in the Balkan adventure. Nor is there evidence that he is reinforcing his remaining striking force, believed to be concentrated on the Meuse, with troops borrowed from the Polish frontier or elsewhere. If he can once obtain mastery of the air over Britain, however, he will still have troops enough. And as to this aspect of the situation there is sharp disagreement between the airmen and the other officers of the intelligence services.

The airmen regard the War Department estimate, that the Luftwaffe is now composed of 18,000 first-line planes and an equal reserve, as extremely conservative. They are convinced that, when the crisis comes, Germany will reveal a pursuit ship better than any the British have, and a new high altitude bomber able to fly above Britain's pursuits and anti-aircraft guns. Although taught some caution by their experience last summer, when they flatly predicted the Luftwaffe would drive the RAF from the air in less than two weeks, the airmen are in somewhat the same mood now as then.

The other officers, who guessed the result last summer better than the airmen, are convinced on the other hand, that Britain is in a better relative position in the air now than six months ago. As the War Department's air attaché in Berlin is a notably sanguine officer, many of them prefer the Navy's figures on German air strength, which are just half the Army's. They admit the possibility of a new German pursuit, and the probability of the high altitude bomber, since German bombers are known to have flown above anti-aircraft range in recent raids. Yet each German boast has its catch in its high altitude. For example, is only about 2 per cent accurate. And the anti-invasion school of strategists can see no reason why the results of the air combat over Britain this spring should be any different from the results last September.

GRAVE U. S. DECISION

If Hitler does attempt invasion, it will be an all-or-nothing gamble. He must risk his whole air power to open an invasion lane across the channel. He must land a huge army, and supply it. If he fails, he cannot survive, for the peoples of dictatorships do not suffer failures gladly. That is the central argument of the anti-invasion school.

The attack they envision, therefore, includes a Japanese assault on Singapore; actions against the British at both ends of the Mediterranean; an intensive submarine campaign combined with air bombing of the supplies of the British Isles; and a highly intensified air onslaught, not against the RAF itself, but against British ports and industrial centers. Of the different manifestations of this attack, the danger to British shipping is incomparably the most serious. The attack's first phase now seems to have opened in the Balkans. And, although the anti-invasionists are more optimistic than the airmen, they frankly admit that when the full power of German submarine, fleet and long-distance bombers is unleashed against the British merchant marine, the United States may be called on to make very grave decisions.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

A Few Epitaphs.

It is an ancient subject, but somehow or other, in ruminating on the column possibilities for this bright, I hope, morning, the thought of epitaphs popped into the old brain. Epitaphs, you know, those inscriptions you read on tombstones.

It is a solemn subject and the first reaction, invariably, is, Wonder what they'll put on mine? Not that I care. I'll be past caring about mundane things by that time. In fact, come to think of it, it won't make any difference to me whether I have a tombstone or not.

Laudatory epitaphs are something like flowers at a funeral, they comfort the survivors but come too late to be of any advantage to the principal in the occasion.

Yet, at that, it is nice to think, while yet alive, you have lived the sort of life that will justify a decently prideful epitaph after you are gone. Whether you get such an inscription or not.

But, To Turn To Humor.

Books have been written about the strange and, generally, seriously, funny epitaphs in some old country graveyards. A few stick in my own memory.

For instance, there is that inscription, said to be found on a tombstone in Ireland, near the coast.

Here Lies Michael O'Rourke. Lost at sea and never found. Had he lived would have been buried here.

It is said that Charles Dickens, that beloved Victorian novelist, was always searching, wherever he went, for unusual surnames to give his characters.

He found the name "David Elginbrod," they say, on a tombstone in Scotland.

Here Lies David Elginbrod. Have mercy on my soul, Lord God, As I would do If I were You And You were David Elginbrod.

The sorrowing survivor of Philip Brown must have believed the afterlife to retain the same materialistic dimensions as this. For on Philip's tombstone in the south of England is this inscription:

Here Lies Philip Brown. He weighed 385 pounds. Open wide, ye Pearly Gates. And I've always thought the apogee of sorrow is expressed in these words, placed by a weeping husband on the grave of his departed wife:

And am she dead, and are she gone, And I am left alone? Oh, cruel Fate, you are unkind, To take her force and leave I hind.

Surprising Celebrity

Changing the subject to one of truly solemn import at this season of the year, have you made your income tax returns?

It is now nearly two months since I wrote what I felt was a convincing editorial urging all who had income tax returns to make 'em early and avoid the last-minute rush.

So it was but to be expected I'd delay my own. I made 'em, to federal and state governments, this week. And I really believe my editorial must have had effect.

For I was astonished at the celerity with which I got through the job. I had any delay at all.

At the post office I had to wait about two minutes for the man ahead of me to finish. That was all.

Similar state of affairs at the capitol annex. Found one man seated at the desk of the courteous examiner. Saw down, wait and promptly stuck a cigaret in my mouth. Before I could light it, the other fellow was through and I was at the desk having my returns checked.

And I was only a couple of weeks ahead of deadline date. Remarkable. But I'll bet there'll be a jam the final couple of days. It is too much to expect that everybody will get through the job in comfort well ahead of March 15.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Sunday, March 5, 1916:

Washington, March 4.—The United States is preparing to make formal demands upon Austria-Hungary as a result of the attack by an Austrian submarine upon the American tank steamer Petroline.

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Thursday, March 5, 1861:

"The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is making it lively for owners of bunged-up mules. Even thirty cases were made yesterday."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PFGLER.

Obscure Heroes NEW YORK, March 4.—There is much vague talk of sacrifice just now by which to indicate to the soldiers of the new Army in their camps that the civilian will endure such trials as he is put to. Yet, on every side in most communities, obscure heroes live whose whole lives have been denial, sacrifice and work for others without recognition, and often without the faintest show of gratitude from those whose thanks are due. They are not a group, a type or a class. They are all little people, each as individual as his individual problem, but they are known to all of us and are pretty effectively put out of mind because their devotion shames us, and the occasions to touch them on the hand with so little as a message on their birthdays and at Christmas are neglected.

Most of those whom I know have been women who seem to have a special sense of responsibility, but there have been some men.

The sallow girl in the office who dresses so plainly and lacks that quality known as personality is unattractive to be sure, but when she is approached, she may be equal at least to that of the man of instant bravery who risks his life to save another.

Only Work Self-Denial

From girlhood she will have known nothing but unintermittent responsibility, worry, work and self-denial. She is not married and probably never will marry, because, after all, she is rising 30 now and has no way with men, and, anyway, what man wants to take on an invalid father-in-law to live in a little apartment for God knows how many years until he has his grip on his slaves and he slips away? Or, if her father is not an invalid he could be a drunkard or just a shiftless old fool leaning his head weight on the scrawny shoulders of a girl.

As I say, the circumstances are alike in no two cases, although the spirit of such martyrs is generally similar, and individuals are known to all of us.

What about brothers and sisters? Are there no brothers and sisters, and, after all, the responsibility theirs as well? Well, yes, there is a brother, but it seems that he pulled out and got married when he was only 20 and has lived in various places trying to get along, but has children now, and, after all, it wouldn't be right to send money home which he needs for his own family. And sisters, then? Yes, two sisters, but they, too, are married and live in another part of town, and, after all, they have developed a pleasant detachment, although they could afford a few dollars now and again.

No Goal Of Ease

And so, such poor, noble drabs are elected by circumstances and character to slave the precious years away when opportunities for happiness and fulfillment could be found, with rarely so much as an hour's joy and with no goal of security or ease beyond the horizon.

Home, at evening, is not a happy circle, but merely a scene of other duties and, in the morning, before work, there is doing around the little place and always there is a ghastly dread of accident, serious illness or the consolidation of several departments into one, with consequent loss of the job and the pay.

We have had novels which have generally paraphrased such lives, but heroism of this kind is not conspicuous, and indeed, is not regarded as heroism at all. We reserve that word for sudden acts of spectacular bravery which are the envy of us all. Nobody envies the heroism and sacrifice of those whose courage and devotion to others persists evenly and without complaint or any thought of flinching or self-pity year after bleak and hopeless year.

I daresay that everyone of mature experience has known more than one person—woman or man—who has voluntarily assumed burdens in life which, in justice, should have been distributed among several. And it appears to me that for no reason that I can suggest, this nobility of soul, in woman at least, is more often discovered in those who are not by the standards of the eye and fashion beautiful or even charming.

It seems to reside exclusively in girls whom God has denied even the weapon of a pretty face with which to confront the world.

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

It is confusing after we have heard one of our favorite radio news commentators pronounce a word, to have an equally famous speaker use the same word but pronounce it differently. Very frequently the difference is slight but the result is the same.

Many readers write to ask what is the "correct" way to pronounce a given word. Assuming that there is a "correct" way. Our leading dictionary publishers have long recognized the fact that geographical location, local custom and usage are usually the determining factors, in arriving at "the preferred" pronunciation of words, if there exists a difference of opinion. Relatively few words present any pronunciation problems.

Economics is a word that is kicked upstairs and down and around the lot while the only pronunciation problem it offers is imaginary. Webster's Dictionary, as far as I know, has always syllabified the word as follows: e-conom-ics with a secondary accent on the first syllable (e). The (e) is long and should be pronounced to rhyme with that in (peek). Some people seem to prefer a short (e) to rhyme with (peck). A determining factor in the use of words which offer an alternative pronunciation, should be the ease with which a word is pronounced.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THE FURIES OF HELL (BENT) Over in the house yesterday, the dreary debate droned on and on as the supporters of the pipe line and the railroads talked and talked about ideals, ethics, and patriotism—everything but the real issue—and all the while the real excitement was in the senate.

All the furies of Hell (Bent) Edwards were for a time directed at the gray head of the senator from Fayette county, Mr. Charles Redwine.

Mr. Redwine stood firm as slings and arrows of the outraged senator from Lowndes flashed about his head. He did not wince nor cry aloud.

When the unbanked fires of Hell (Bent) raged about him to the extent of a statement that he, Mr. Edwards, could use his fists, the gentleman from Fayette stood firmly on his diars.

The little drama, the best of the current season in the legislative halls, played to empty galleries. The great wrestling match of Kid Pipe Line and Battling Railways had drawn the crowd.

The verbal pyrotechnics came during debate on the bill to place the Department of Entomology under the Department of Agriculture. This was an administration bill and the first such bill to fail.

Mr. Edwards offered a substitute and it was in argument over an application of the senate-made rules that he reached the point where he spoke of using his own two fists to obtain his point.

The administration bill was defeated, largely because of telegrams from growers over the state who opposed, but also administration leaders groused over this as they charged Hell Bent Edwards had muddled the waters and beclouded the issue.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT This little outburst may be all it stands as the first rift in the sweetness-and-light relationship which has existed since the 1941 session began.

It has been a very routine session. To date the spotlight has beat with consistency only upon one person—the person of Mr. Hell Bent Edwards. Mr. Edwards has occupied the spotlight as often as the actor who plays Hamlet. A Polonius or so, an occasional Laertes and a Horatio or so occasionally have made their appearance.

But, to date, the soliloquies, the great dramatic parts and the swift passages of words have seen the senator from Lowndes in the leading role.

With the exception of Mr. Hell Bent Edwards, no other personality has been thrust out of the ranks. The rest of them have gone along in the current. In the first few days there were a few who struggled against the current as House Bill No. 1 was before them. They were sunk by the heavy artillery of the administration and the equally important inflamed public opinion of that period.

Whether Mr. Edwards entertains any ambitions to sit in the Governor's office and occupy the mansion, is not known. There are those who think they see in his eyes the gleaming light of ambition to be the chief executive.

If so, there as yet is no way to determine whether he has helped himself or hurt. One thing is sure. He has made certain implacable enemies. Only time will tell if he has made any friends who will stick come hell or high water.

This makes it all the more important to know if the breach of yesterday, when the blood was hot, will be healed. Or whether Mr. Edwards is to become a maverick, wearing no brand or no man's collar.

TWO GOOD PILOTS If, and when, Mr. Talmadge gets around to pinning any decorations on the lapels of his lieutenants, he ought very handsomely to decorate Mr. Charley Redwine and Mr. Randall Evans, respectively president of the senate and speaker of the house.

Both have been fair. No one may charge they have not ruled impartially and with strict adherence to the rules of their respective bodies and of parliamentary procedure.

Both, however, have kept a firm grip on the reins and have steered the administration ship past every rock and shoal shown by the political charts. Indeed, they have managed to avoid those uncharted rocks, which appear in every political stream, with considerable skill.

I would say, off-hand, that the major decoration should go to the speaker of the house. It was not expected the Gray Fox of Fayette would go astray or become flustered. He is an old hand and one who has learned by experience. He does not fluster easily.

The wise boys were saying that Talmadge's choice of Randall Evans for speaker was his, Talmadge's, first real error. They were saying that the hot blood of the gentleman from McDuffie would boil over; that his temper would break out, and that he would lose control of the house within 30 days.

The facts are that Randall Evans has done an outstanding job; that he has won the respect and admiration of practically every member of the house. He is easier on his feet than he has ever been; he is handier with words than ever before; he has come through with a very fine contribution on behalf of the administration without once deviating from the rules of the game.

The fact that Mr. Talmadge has been seen, and not heard; that all has been sweetness and light, is due largely to Redwine and Evans and to the fact that Mr. Talmadge has learned, through experience, the value of sawing wood and saying nothing.

If Crippled Bodies Deserve Pity, Do Crippled Minds Deserve Any Less?

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

There was a picture in a magazine—one of those comedy-relief things in a page of small type—showing a prisoner on his bunk counting sheep to induce sleep—only they weren't sheep, but zebras, with stripes that matched the stripes on his convict uniform.

The picture didn't make you laugh. It made you swear, if you were the swearing kind.

It isn't funny to gibe at the men in the Big House. It is dirty. It is like kicking a man when he is down—kicking him to make yourself feel superior because you are on your feet.

Maybe you are superior—and maybe you are not. Only this is certain: That prisoners would have a lot more company if everybody got what the law prescribes. And all of us could truthfully echo the words of the philosopher, who said of a broken outcast: "There, but for the grace of God, go I."

Prisoners are men who got bad breaks. They are victims of fate.

That doesn't mean they are lily-white innocents, railroaded to prison for crimes they didn't commit. All but a few were guilty as charged.

They broke the law, and men who will not play by the rules must be put away for the protection of society—though many who prey on the public remain free and live on the fat of the land because they know how to trick the law or corrupt the law's agents.

Dudley Glass

Tells of a Friend Who Couldn't Pick Good Time for Suicide.

Story of that airplane crash and the subsequent investigation has pretty well been cleaned up now. Newspaperman down from New York told me he'd never seen better coverage than the Atlanta papers gave—no one more humanly decent.

It's ancient history now, as news goes. But I'm thinking of a final paragraph in a UP story by J. S. Rosenfeld, one of the survivors. After describing his experiences he wrote:

"All during the night I kept thinking about a telegram I'd sent my wife, telling her I'd be home at 3:10 a. m. I knew she would be worried."

Little things loom large sometimes.

Here was this Rosenfeld, bruised, battered, half frozen in his pajamas under a tree in the darkness. Thankful, of course, to be alive, and bothered immensely because his wife would be waiting up for him and be worried.

Back in the tough old days of '29 and '30 when the world had turned upside down—for those who played with stocks—and most everybody was ready to call it a day and quit everything, a friend of mine made up his mind to commit suicide.

He was getting along in years, his business had gone to pot, creditors were yelping at his heels. Life didn't mean anything to him any more.

"It seemed the best way out," he told me, several years afterward.

"All I had was a bunch of life insurance. Pretty big bunch. More than I could hope to keep paid up. It was in my wife's name and safe from creditors. I figured the insurance companies would have to pay some time—so why not now?"

No Convenient Time.

"But you didn't take the short way out," I suggested. "Else you wouldn't be talking to me now. Get cold feet?"

"It was this way," he explained. "I never could find a convenient time to blow out what brains I had left or jump off a tall building or take an accidental tumble into a river."

"It seemed that every time I was about ready my wife had planned a bridge luncheon. Or one of my daughters was about to pay us a visit. Or my nephew's engagement to a lovely girl was just about to be announced and I couldn't spoil his plans.

"You know a chap has to be decent and consider these things. I was just about ready to shuffle off this mortal coil when my closest friend asked me to be an usher at his daughter's wedding. Our families had been so intimate that my untimely and tragic demise would have cast a shadow over the festivities. So I postponed it."

"Are you still carrying an automatic and a fountain pen filled with cyanide?" I inquired.

"Hell, no," he said. "Things picked up and I started hustling again. I've paid off most of my debts and have as good a job as I used to have and feel I'm pretty well in the clear. I ought to be good for 20 or 30 years yet."

Lack of Exits.

"Death hangs over Woodruff Hall."

So writes the editor of Red and Black, the University of Georgia campus weekly. He's talking about the big hall where they hold dances and basketball games. And his lack of exits.

I don't know, having attended affairs in Woodruff Hall only a few times, when I was too busy engaged with other things to inspect exits.

But the editorial did remind me of a story told by Bill Hastings.

It seems there was a big revival meetings underway at the Big Sandy church, away out in the flatwoods.

And a few devilish white spawns of hell had acquired Ku Klux nightshirts and applied phosphorus to their faces to give them a ghostly appearance and had risen from concealment just as the visiting evangelist was getting into a weavin' way.

From now on the story is told by one of the flock:

"Me, I was settin' in de back row, so I hit de fresh air quick."

"I wuz up de big road maybe a mile when somethin' come by me with a whoosh, kinder like a cyclone. I could feel its wind as it come by."

"It stumbled over a rock about 40 rods ahead and when I overtook it I found it was the preacher."

"He had a whole big window sash wropped around his neck and his head was stuck through a place where glass had been and he was a sayin':

"Dod-burn a church which ain't got but one door!"

Wise observation from the sage of the Banks County Journal, Brer Jack Hilton:

"If some legislators would get a bill through making it legal for nine jurors to make a verdict he would save this state many hundreds of thousands of dollars by less mistrials. We have seen men on juries so crooked that if they would swallow wire nails they would manufacture corkscrews. One bought juror can make a mistrial as the law now stands. Some states allow nine jurors to make a verdict and it works well."

An empty house is more expensive than a Want Ad in The Constitution that will rent it.

ISOLATIONISTS MAKING MOCKERY OF AMERICA

Editor Constitution: Would that our senators would come out of the night of fog in which they are foundering. Would that we actually had a real American as a dictator at this time, to put an end to this criminal waste of time and put into action the lease-lend bill and other measures sorely to safeguard the interests and defense of this country.

The President was elected on a policy of aid to Britain: Wendell Willkie (so-called leader of the opposition) definitely agrees with the President on this policy; public opinion is very largely with the administration.

Then why do we permit these ill-advised legislators to block the bill and delay its passage? Even the politicians admit it is bound to pass. Therefore the question arises who and what sinister forces are playing into the hands of the Nazis (and Communists) by delaying its passage as long as possible?

Being an American, I believe in the right of everyone to think for himself, but when our leaders have full knowledge (as they must have if they can read, and listen to the radio) of the activities, the aims and purposes, as well as the actual performances of the Nazis in recent months; then it is beyond my comprehension how they could refuse to take any and all drastic measures to stop Hitler over there, which we now have the opportunity to do so long as England stands.

When the most courageous people of all time are putting up such a valiant battle against the forces of evil, it should shame us into gladly and quickly giving all possible material aid.

And suppose we do eventually have to get into the fight, too? Certainly, these brilliant gentlemen in the senate should know that such action will probably be forced upon us through events and circumstances over which we will have no direct control. Do they not yet have the slightest conception that this is a world-revolution: a fight to the bitter end to cherish and defend the American (which is also the English) way of life; and that every individual sooner or later will have to take his stand either with the forces of right or evil? This is one issue in which ultimately there will be no straddling of the fence.

God forgive us if we so little appreciate the blessings of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness that we are not willing to help others attain or preserve the same privileges. What a mockery that America, the light-bearer, should stand by, holding in reserve her great strength and resources for her own selfish use, instead of throwing her weight in the scales and tipping them on the side of justice, liberty and humanity.

GAS FREIGHT SAVINGS DON'T AID CONSUMER

Editor, Constitution: I noticed in your paper a letter from C. B. Bishop, secretary-manager, Atlanta Motor Club, in which he states it is to the interest of every consumer of gasoline to pass the bill giving pipe lines right of eminent domain in this state and cites the difference in cost of transportation if it becomes necessary to transport gasoline by rail, which increased cost he assumes will be borne by the consumer. He imagines this rail transportation may be necessary if ship tankers are needed by Great Britain and our Navy.

Does not Mr. Bishop realize there is no oil field located at Port St. Joe, Fla., and if gasoline will be piped from there that it will be necessary to bring it to Port St. Joe by tankers? Does he not also assume that Great Britain and our Navy will need these tankers just as much as they will tankers now being used to bring gasoline to Savannah?

Further, Mr. Bishop does not seem to be aware that the cost of transportation, has very little if anything to do with price of gasoline to consumers in Georgia. For example, does he know the price of standard gasoline in Gainesville, Ga., is 18c per gallon; but in Athens, Ga., it is 21c per gallon, yet the freight rate from Savannah (all of this gas is shipped from Savannah) to Athens is 17c per hundred pounds, yet the price in Gainesville to his consumers in whom he seems to be so interested is 3c per gallon cheaper than it is to the consumer in Athens. Does Mr. Bishop know that the price of gasoline in Athens is higher today than it was in 1939 although the freight rate today to Athens is lower than it was in 1939? I could go on and cite him examples without end, but it seems to me the above is sufficient to prove to him and anyone else that freight rates have very little to do with price of gasoline. I cannot help but believe that Mr. Bishop's interest was inspired by other than those of the consumers and I don't think it will be hard for any consumer to figure where his inspiration came from.

If they are going to give oil companies the right of eminent domain, a most powerful instrument, then venture for profit which, after all, is all the pipe line is. Why not give it to chain grocery stores, chain drug stores, chain shoe stores or any other big corporation that has something to sell.

Bill To Abolish Entomology Division Killed

Senator Who Had Never Debated Before Leads Opposition.

The administration met its first defeat in the state senate yesterday when Senator J. L. Pilcher, a Thomas county farmer who had never before participated in floor debate, outtalked the famed "Hell Bent" Edwards and led a 27-17 vote which killed the bill to abolish the Entomology Department.

Pilcher was a legislative David using a sling shot of telegrams from farmers throughout the state as he clashed head-on with the 255-pound Senator Edwards, author of the Talmadge-approved measure to place the Entomology Department under the jurisdiction of Tom Linder, commissioner of agriculture.

Action on the bill, last of the so-called economy measures, has been postponed from time to time during the past month. Opposition to it grew up after a public hearing attended by farmers.

Pilcher, who says he "grows everything" on his 35-plow farm, read 75 telegrams from plant farmers and several tomato soup manufacturers who threatened to stop buying the bulk of their tomatoes in Georgia if the Entomology Department were tampered with.

Edwards claimed the telegrams had been sent because of a "lobby organized by Manning Yeomans, head of the Entomology Department, when my bill threatened to cut his salary to $3,600. Yeomans' term expires next month."

Group Approves Sale of Cocktails

A bill that would permit hotels to sell mixed drinks provided a retail liquor dealer's license is first obtained was reported favorably yesterday by the state Senate Prohibition Committee.

Drawn by Senator H. B. Edwards, the measure provides that authorized hotels, which have been in business for one year or more, may petition for a retail license in wet counties and if granted can thereafter serve alcoholic beverages.

Senator Edwards said in his opinion such a law would attract an additional annual revenue of $250,000 through the sale of licenses and permits. Hotels also would be required to pay municipal licenses where such are required.

Bill Seeks To Establish Course for Veterinarians

The Georgia Board of Regents would be required to establish a three-year course of instruction in veterinary medicine and surgery at the College of Agriculture at Athens under a bill introduced in the senate yesterday.

Completion of the course would be rewarded with a degree of doctor of veterinary medicine and surgery and would entitle the graduate to practice in the state. Senator J. O. Wall, of Eatonton, was sponsor of the proposal.

To give employment and to get employment . . . A Want Ad in The Constitution is equally effective in both cases.

Bill Would Authorize Counties To Buy Springs

A bill to authorize the purchase of Jay Bird Springs in Dodge county at a price not to exceed $35,000 was submitted in the house yesterday by the Dodge delegation and others.

The bill would provide for the purchase to be made by the following counties: Dodge, Telfair, Laurens, Wheeler, Bleckley, Wilcox, Crisp, Dooly, Ben Hill, Coffee, Jeff Davis, Appling, Tattnall, Evans, Candler, Bulloch, Montgomery, Toombs, Treutlen, Pulaski, Macon and Irwin.

TRAFFIC Congestion At Its Worst, might be the title of the picture above, published recently in an Atlanta newspaper. It shows Forsyth Street, looking South, with traffic pouring in from the Union Station plaza. Note that not a single street car or bus is shown.

Now, look at the same location below. There is one street car, few automobiles, and plenty of space for the movement of all traffic. The point is that all of the people in all of the automobiles out in the stream of traffic could have been accommodated in the one street car. If they had all ridden the street car and left their automobiles at home, the bottom picture would have fairly represented the traffic condition.

We are not suggesting that those particular drivers should necessarily have been on that street car. For one thing, they are going in different directions. For another, some of them are on their way to Bogart, Georgia.

The photographs only show how much space 30 automobiles (approximately) take up on the street and how little space one street car requires to carry all of the people in the automobiles.

Incidentally, the photograph below is not "faked" in any way. The two pictures were made at different times. Each represents the traffic situation as it actually existed at the moment.

... Plus City and County Taxes

Attention, Local Taxpayers

This $1,187,352.30—used solely for buying free school books for Georgia children—represents state beer excise and state license taxes only. It includes no part of the beer industry's property taxes on its huge investment in land, buildings, plants and equipment—nor does it include the large sums paid to local governments, city and county, for licenses. Vigilant Program of Self-Regulation

The beer industry is not merely an economic factor, an employer, a taxpayer—it fully recognizes its obligations to the public, its social responsibility. Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

I met Pastor A. T. Persons, of McDonough, at the hospital Monday morning, and I was impressed by his buoyant spirit and his ruddy complexion. "Been fishin'?" I asked him, thinking that surely a man would have to have been in that Florida sunshine to have a tan at this season of the year. But he said not—that he managed to keep in the open enough right here at home to keep that coat of tan. He went on to tell me how he sits in the open air and reads, and how he takes deep breathing exercises every day in the open, and so forth.

That explained not only his ruddy complexion, but the radiant cheerfulness as well. And it brought to mind that little quatrain that runs something like this:

"Remember when you give up trying
You stop living and start dying;
In case you hadn't thought of it,
You're not a failure till you quit."

And I believe that states a practical truth not only for one's physical self, but for the entire being—mental and spiritual, too.

My attention was attracted by a title in a magazine the other night, "Dead or Alive?" I didn't know at first whether I wanted to read that article or not, but I did, of course; and here are a half dozen sentences in that article that I pass along:

"If you never play games for

Former Czarist Courtier Dies At Age of 68

Moses A. Mosgovoy Stricken by Heart Attack.

Far removed from the glitter and finery of the old Czarist Russian court into which he was born and to which, as a courtier, he served, Moses A. Mosgovoy, 68, died suddenly yesterday on a bench at the Ford Motor Company plant on Ponce de Leon avenue. He was waiting to begin his job on the evening shift in the maintenance department when he was seized by a heart attack. Once he had been a courtier. That was before he fled his native land during the Kerensky revolution. His death altered by a few days the permanent reunion of a family unsettled and mostly divided since they fled across bleak Siberia more than two decades ago. Mrs. Mosgovoy and a daughter, Zoya, had already completed arrangements to move to the home from New York to Atlanta.

Mosgovoy had been making his home with a second daughter, Mrs. Ernest D. Bean, at 1253 North avenue, and a son, Nicolas, now a Tech High student. The one-time attendant at the brilliant court of Czar Nicholas was reputed to have possessed millions prior to his exile. He escaped from Russia with only a few meager possessions, old court costumes, icons and the like. The family lived for a while in Harbin, China, where Mosgovoy earned a living in the mercantile trade. The daughter, Zoya, worked with the North China Daily News. Pending arrival of Mrs. Mosgovoy and daughter from New York, the body is being held at the establishment of Howard L. Carmichael.

Co-ordinators Talk Contracts In Washington

Small Manufacturers To Reap Benefits From Defense Work.

Decentralizing defense contracts so that more of this business may flow to the small manufacturer will be discussed today in Washington when William Cram, co-ordinating manager for the Atlanta area, meets with Robert L. Mehornay, director of the co-ordinating service, and other representatives from other parts of the United States.

This will be the first meeting of the co-ordinators who were only recently designated. Frank H. Neely, prominent Atlanta businessman who was designated as the area's district co-ordinator, was unable to attend the conference and sent Cram in his place. The conference will serve to co-ordinate and stimulate the efforts of the office of production management to spread defense work, especially through the subcontracting system, so that every available manufacturing facility is brought into full support of the defense effort. According to Mr. Mehornay, the discussion will concern "the practical problems of decentralizing defense contracting

The show will be concluded tomorrow with the sale of steers. The parsonage has stood on the site more than a third of a century, and until 10 years ago was occupied by ministers. Fulton Tangle Develops Over New Tax Bill

Hughes Spalding Favoring Reclassification Plan, Board Told.

A tangle over who is favoring and opposing a bill in the legislature to tax accounts receivable as intangibles instead of as ad valorem property developed yesterday at a county commission meeting called to consider pending legislation that affects Fulton county.

The commissioners were informed that Hughes Spalding, county attorney, is favoring a new classification for accounts receivable, and promptly voted an order that the county legal department, including Spalding, represent the county. The commissioners said passage of the bill would cost the city and the county between $800,000 and $1,000,000 in taxes. County Attorney Spalding, when informed of the commissioners' action said he had no comment to make for publication but added he would discuss the board's order with the commission at a meeting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

However, he showed a pamphlet he had written favoring house bill number 379 (the tax bill), in which he said that foreign capital is afraid to invest in Georgia because of antiquated tax laws which are not enforced, and that Georgia for this reason is far behind other states in obtaining new developments. The commissioners, considering other legislation, approved an amendment to the county police pension law placing county firemen in the same pension fund, and providing for an annual appropriation of $20,000 for the police pension fund to take the place of the present 15 per cent of fines and forfeitures.

They likewise adopted a resolution opposing any special legislation to benefit an individual. Two bills, one to place John W. Ball Sr. on the police pension fund, and another to place Mrs. Charley Lyle on the general employees' pension fund, have been introduced in the legislature.

Births

The following births were recorded in the city board of health yesterday: Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Johnson, 1188 Cahava drive, S. W., daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, 153 Atlanta avenue, S. E., daughter; Mr. and Mrs. F. Coker, 444 Grant street, S. E., son; Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Williams, 533 Waters avenue, son; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Austin, 1123 Austin avenue, son.

If You Get Up Nights How Are Your Kidneys?

Most people never think of their kidneys although these vital organs contain about 2 million tiny tubules which at night and day cleaning and filtering excess acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. Because they never get a real rest it's easy to see that as you grow older the kidneys may get tired and slow down. These excess acids and wastes may accumulate and poison your system because of functional rather than organic or systemic kidney and bladder troubles. So if you have to get up nights, or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, backaches and groin pains, due to non-organic and non-systemic kidney mistakes in trying the prescription called Cystex. Over ten million packages of Cystex have been sold in 74 countries and have given such joyous, happy relief to so many thousands of people that it is now sold under a positive guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory to you. Cystex now costs only 50c at drug stores and the guarantee protects you.—(Adv.)

Mark Being Made By FSA Farmer

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
CARROLLTON, Ga., March 4.—Grady B. Perren not only met his installment on a Farm Security Administration loan for operation of his farm near Villa Rica. He paid three yearly installments, the FSA local offices announced, including overpayment on a farm purchase loan.

He cleared land for pasture and sold the timber, planting good grass seed. He made 11 bales of cotton on 13 acres, averaged 17 bushels of corn per acre, produced his own flour from home-grown wheat, and achieved an all-year garden.

The Perrens produced 140 pounds of lard from a hog kill of 750 pounds. They kept two cows, and are amply supplied with dairy products and eggs from a large flock of hens.

Besides preserving a adequate food supplies, Mrs. Perren has done extensive quilting.

Hobo Charged With Robbing Drivers' Wives

Hitch-Hiker Accused of Repaying Kindnesses With Assaults.

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—Trapped by his scrawling handwriting, a 23-year-old scarred hitch-hiker was accused today by Bronx authorities of being the vagabond who repaid kindnesses with assaults and robberies of nearly a score of women, culminating in the strangulation of a young Bronx housewife a month ago.

Bronx District Attorney Samuel J. Foley declared the captive, George Joseph Cvek, of Harrisburg, Pa., had admitted the slaying of Mrs. Catherine Pappas, 29, and had told an extraordinary tale of hitch-hiking up and down eastern highways, gleaning information from kindly drivers that later enabled him to enter their homes in the guise of friend, attack their wives, and rob.

Georgia Police Help. Police from Maine to Georgia had a part in the unending man-hunt of the last month, Foley said. Cvek listened casually as James Carney, assistant district attorney, described him as a "vicious murderer," and replied shortly, "okay," when the magistrate asked him if he objected to an adjournment of hearing until Friday.

Shortly before Cvek was arraigned, John Pappas—husband of the slain woman—confronted him in the police station. Both regarded each other calmly, but neither commented.

Throughout the day detectives questioned Cvek regarding nearly a score of other assault robberies, and police from Pennsylvania were to question him about two unsolved slayings, one of them the killing of Rachel Taylor, 17, of Wildwood, N. J.

Followed Pattern. The Taylor girl was beaten to death the night of March 28, 1940, as she returned to Pennsylvania State College from an Easter vacation.

Foley said that Cvek followed an unmistakable pattern in his dealings with men who gave him rides in their cars, often giving him money, buying him food and in some instances inviting him into their homes.

Representing himself to be a former mayor of Boystown, Neb., Cvek several times mailed postcards to Boystown in the presence of friendly motorists—or asked them to mail the cards for him. He made one mistake—he spelled the Boystown director's name—Father Flanagan—with two n's.

From these cards, police obtained samples of his handwriting.

Defense Little Affected by Strikes-F. D. R.

War Department Irked, However, by Walkout at Wright Field.

By The Associated Press.

President Roosevelt said at his press conference yesterday that only about one-quarter of one percent of defense projects were affected by strikes.

That was the chief executive's answer to questions whether he felt concerned over the labor situation. By the President's estimate one-fourth of one percent of the defense effort had been affected.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to say whether he was in favor of a "cooling off" period for projected strikes as suggested by William S. Knudsen, of the office of production management.

War Department Protest. Earlier in the day the War Department singled out the strike of AFL building trades workers at Wright Field, Ohio, for special comment, saying the labor trouble there delayed defense facilities "needed at once" by the Army Air Corps.

Without expressing itself definitely as to the merits of the dispute which has halted work on $5,900,000 in construction, the department asserted the Penner Installation Corporation, whose CIO workers are unwelcome to AFL, "has a valid contract."

Developments. Other developments: Immediate negotiation of a collective bargaining contract with the Ford Motor Company, working on $154,000,000 in national defense orders, was proposed by the United Automobile Workers—CIO—along with other demands.

The union's demands quickly were answered by the big firm. Harry H. Bennett, personnel head of the plants employing 95,000 men, asserted that "no labor dispute exists between this company and its employees."

In a letter to Governor Murray Van Wagoner of Michigan, the Ford executive said harmony prevailed at the plant "despite attempts by certain groups of labor agitators" to create a false impression of contention.

The same group started the sit-down strikes in Michigan. The union yesterday handed a list of demands to James F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator.

Spy System Charged. R. J. Thomas, international president of the union, and Michael F. Widman Jr., leader of the organizing drive, insisted that company representatives meet with union men to discuss wage increases, abolition of what the union called the "company spy system," and elimination of "speedups."

The conciliator said he would submit the demands to Governor Van Wagoner's special mediation commission.

In Cleveland a CIO die casting workers' union struck at the plant of the Pressure Castings, Inc.

The plant works on British and United States orders for aircraft, truck and binocular parts.

North Carolina Walkout. The strike called by the Wilmington (N. C.) Building Trades Council of the AFL at Camp Davis, Hollyridge, N. C., was reported settled. The camp is to be the scene of the Army's $13,000,000 anti-aircraft firing range.

Frank Sheehan, federal labor conciliator, announced the settlement of the walkout, said to have affected 4,000 to 6,000 workers out of an estimated 10,000 to 15,000. The union sought a preferential shop, time and a half for overtime and double pay for Sundays and holidays.

No terms were agreed upon, the conciliator said, but the men agreed to go to work today.

amicably in such matters as the dismemberment of Poland—these informants cited:

1. The fact that only yesterday the Soviet, in announcing disapproval of the Bulgarian government's decision to let German troops into that country, in effect publicly condemned Germany's move.

2. The understanding long current in informed circles, but only now discussed openly, that one of the German promises which secured the co-operation of the government of General Antonescu in Rumania was that of future aid to get back for Rumania the provinces of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, which were seized by the Soviet last year.

In the view of men long in the Balkans, however, none of this meant a clash between Germany and Russia was to be expected in the near future.

President Inonu was publicly noncommittal as to what Hitler's couriers had said. It was announced merely that he had asked Franz von Papen, the German ambassador, to thank the Fuehrer.

The Turkish ministers of national defense and of the interior went to Istanbul to inspect European Turkey's defenses and then on to the Bulgarian frontier to examine fortifications, where newly called reservists flowed in to reinforce nearly 200,000 soldiers already on duty there.

The government ordered all industries to report immediately as to maximum productive capacity and the extent of stores of raw material.

The blackout and other defense measures were ordered for all large Turkish cities.

Sir Stafford Cripps, the British ambassador to Moscow, arranged to return tomorrow by airplane. He came to Turkey last week for consultations of Anthony Eden, the British foreign minister; Sir John Dill, chief of the British imperial staff, and Turkish leaders.

At the end of these discussions it was stated that Britain and Turkey were wholly in agreement on Balkan problems.

At no time since the war began had there been such fever in the Balkans. Troops maneuvered, mobilized or took up significant stations in Rumania, Bulgaria, Turkey and Russia.

In Sofia, German sources circulated reports that British pilots were photographing the country in apparent preparation for bombing, and more than 100 pursuit ships were made ready to take the air from a new emergency airport there.

German bombers, fighters, transport planes swept over the city toward the Greek and Turkish frontiers—where the Nazis have taken over the military airports.

Soviet troops in Bessarabia, along the Prut river frontier from Nazi-occupied Rumania, were reported reinforced.

Russia herself was reported to be blacked out. Odessa, her Black sea port, and Chisinau and Cernauti, in Bessarabia, and sent more motorized troops to the frontier from Kiev.

The vast movement of German troops from Rumania into Bulgaria went on. It was reported, too, that big troop movements had begun along Germany via Hungary toward Rumania.

It was understood in Bulgaria and elsewhere in the Balkans that the regent of Yugoslavia, Prince Paul, was going to Germany Thursday to see Hitler and perhaps to join the German-Italian-Japanese alliance. Such a step would leave Greece as the one Balkan power standing apart from the Axis.

In Berlin, the official German news agency DNB reported from Belgrade that Dr. Vladimir Macek, the Yugoslavian vice premier, had received German Minister Viktor von Heeren at his country estate.)

Shirt Factory Strike-Bound Despite Truce

Cluett, Peabody Signs With CIO, Picketed by AFL Unit.

Cluett, Peabody & Company's Atlanta plant, with the ink scarcely dry on a contract with the CIO's Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, was strike-bound again yesterday—picketed this time by the AFL's United Garment Workers of America.

The giant plant here was scheduled to resume full operation yesterday morning, but late yesterday afternoon a spokesman for the firm reported it had been operating at "less than half normal production." Attempts will be made today to continue operation, however, the spokesman said.

George Googe, southern representative of the AFL, reported the AFL union struck the plant because of "unfair labor practices." He said the effect of the contract with the CIO would be to "force AFL members, who are in a majority, into a CIO affiliate."

"We have asked the Labor Department to request that the firm and Sidney Hillman, president of the CIO union, hold the contract in abeyance pending a Labor Board consent election," he said. Such an election could be held immediately, if the firm and the CIO union agree to it.

"Cluett, Peabody has defense orders and we are anxious to return to work under a truce until the government can hold an election and decide the bargaining agency," he declared. "AFL members, however, refuse to be forced into the CIO when they are in the majority."

He said the United Garment Workers has a membership of 387 of the firm's 750 employees.

Mayor, DeKalb Leader Praise Highway Plan

Cobb Delegation Asks By-Pass for Through Traffic.

Praise for the proposed creation of a metropolitan highway authority to carry out a metropolitan traffic plan came yesterday from officials of DeKalb county and Atlanta as another delegation sought aid of the State Highway Board in establishing a by-pass around Atlanta for traffic coming from Alabama toward Augusta and points east.

Mayor LeCraw and Scott Candler, commissioner of DeKalb county, joined in commending the two legislative bills introduced Monday which would create a highway authority for Fulton and DeKalb with power to issue up to $25,000,000 in bonds against anticipated revenue in order to carry out provisions of a metropolitan traffic plan now in the survey stage.

Candler, Troy Chastain, chairman of the Fulton county commission, and C. M. Head, commissioner of Cobb county, yesterday headed a delegation before the State Highway Board asking that a by-pass highway from Dallas to Marietta to Roswell to Chamblee and Tucker be developed to carry heavy truck and passenger traffic en route from the west toward the Buford highway. Athens, Augusta and points north reached from this direction only through Atlanta.

W. E. Wilburn, chairman of the highway board, said the project was worthy and that the board would give it consideration. He estimated it would cost approximately $100,000 in paving unpaved stretches of existing county roads between the towns on the proposed by-pass.

Mrs. Trammell Dies; Rites Today

Mrs. W. O. Trammell, whose husband, who survives, was the last of three generations to operate the old Trammell drugstore, which stood for more than 50 years on Marietta street as one of the city's well known landmarks, died yesterday at a private hospital. She lived at 330 Washington street.

Born in Buena Vista, Mrs. Trammell attended the old Woodbury School for Girls on Peachtree street. She was a member of St. Mark church, and the Mrs. Alonzo Richardson Bible class.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill, the Rev. Lester Humble officiating. Burial will be at Buena Vista.

Surviving, besides her husband, are three sons, Willard O. Jr., Barry and Barney Trammell, of Atlanta; two sisters, Miss Mabel Bradley and Mrs. Haynes Collins, of Buena Vista, and two brothers, Eric Bradley, of Cleveland, and William Bradley, of Atlanta.

Church Sends Man to Prison

Nearly 500 members of the Sixth Street Holiness church yesterday were technically prosecutors of H. C. Wilson, Atlanta, charged with larceny after trust of $100 from the church.

Wilson was found guilty by a jury which fixed his sentence at one to two years but recommended that the judge treat the case as a misdemeanor, which would allow the judge to impose a lesser sentence than 12 months.

Evidence brought out by Assistant Solicitor E. E. Andrews from members of the Holiness congregation was that the church bought a lot from Wilson provided he could have it zoned for a church building. The church put up $100 "earnest" money but couldn't get it back when Wilson failed to get the lot zoned for church use, they testified. Judge Hugh M. Dorsey is to pass sentence on Wilson this morning.

Georgia Traffic Deaths Increase

Georgia's traffic deaths in February jumped 26 per cent over the record for the same month last year, state patrol headquarters revealed yesterday.

The total for last month was 64 fatalities, compared with 51 in February of 1940.

The low death total in February last year might have been caused by the fact that ice and snow were on the ground much of the time and fewer cars were on the road, it was said.

Figures for January of the two years varied little. There were 62 deaths in the first month of 1940 and 59 this year.

Woman Defies Dies Subpoena, Attacks Probe

Peace Leader Says Committee Uses Intimidation.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP) Mrs. Sarah V. Montgomery today defied a Dies committee subpoena calling for records of the American Peace Mobilization and accused the committee of intimidating opponents of the lend-lease bill.

Chairman Dies, Democrat, Texas, of the committee, terming the mobilization "a Communist front organization," denied her charge and announced that the question of contempt proceedings would be considered tomorrow.

Mrs. Montgomery, secretary-treasurer of the local unit, appeared before Dies with her attorney and two members of the APM national council, Joseph Cadden, of the American Youth Congress, and Morris Watson, of the American Labor party.

As she left the hearing room Mrs. Montgomery remarked to reporters that "this is what Mr. Dies does to American citizens."

Mass Output Of Aircraft Is Seen for U. S.

Vultee President Says Industry Is Growing Up Rapidly.

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—(P) Richard W. Millar, president of Vultee Aircraft, Inc., said today that the aircraft industry, in its present rapid expansion accompanying the defense program, was well on the way to mass production.

"We now are, for the first time," he told stockholders in the company's first annual report, "approaching quantity production in the sense that the term applied to the automobile industry of many years ago."

Illustrating the extreme pressure under which the aircraft industry is operating, Millar pointed out that 37,000 military planes are scheduled for production in the next 18 months while the total production of all types of planes in the United States since the Wright Brothers first flew 37 years ago has been only 85,000 planes.

"Within a year," he said, "the erstwhile infant air industry seems destined to become one of the largest industrial employers in the United States."

'Lobbyists' Jam Soda Fountain; Solons Object

Propose $250 Fee To Boost Treasury, Buy Cold Drinks.

Lobbyists were so thick in the cloakrooms and corridors of the capitol yesterday afternoon that four members of the house charged they could not get to the fountain for a soft drink and promptly introduced a resolution asking that each lobbyist be assessed a $250 fee.

The complaining legislators were Representatives Fred Hand, of Mitchell; Ralph Lovett, of Burke; George B. Brooks, of Oglethorpe; and Elliott Hagan, of Screven.

The resolution, which was adopted by the house, asked that the first $1,000,000 collected in lobbyist fees go into the general fund, the next $1,000,000 distributed pro rata to house members, and the balance, if any, be used during the remainder of the session to buy cold drinks for members of the house, attaches and the stenographic force.

after a cold then what

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice. You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

So reason sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S.S. Tonic—taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a local infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.

An experience with S.S.S. Tonic will cause you to say to your friends, S.S.S. made me "feel and look like myself again."

COMMITTEE REPORTS—The special house committee investigating labor conditions submitted its report yesterday, declaring it had found evidences of rackets and discriminations against citizens of Georgia. Ready with their report are seated Roscoe Pickett Jr., of Picken; and J. B. Davis, of Coweta. Standing, left to right, are Cicero Kendrick, of Fulton; E. E. Yawn, of Dodge; and Perry L. Pittman, of Berrien. Fred Hand, of Mitchell, the chairman, was not present.

Solon Seeks Union 'Racket' To Add Tax to Pipe Line Bills eminent domain, and (2) the question of national defense.

An opponent of the pipe line, he said he felt the bills would not work to the benefit of national defense but on the contrary would work against it.

"Not Common Carriers." He declared the pipe line company was asking for the right of eminent domain for one purpose alone—profit. Furthermore, he expressed the opinion the pipe line companies were not common carriers.

Turning to taxation, he pointed out that the railroads paid to Fulton county more than $269,000 annually in taxes, while the pipe line would pay only $434.91.

"Is it fair to put the state of Georgia financially?" he wanted to know.

He said the emphasis put on the telegram from Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, saying that the President was referring to the Southeastern Pipe Line in his letter calling attention to the value of pipe lines to national defense, should be discounted.

Didn't Answer Question. Candler insisted that the telegram did not answer the question asked by Representative Dawson Kea, of Laurens, whether the pipe lines actually were important or vital to the national defense program.

The DeKalb representative was interrupted by Representative J. W. Culpepper, of Fayette, who inquired: "Do you know why the President himself did not answer the gentleman from Laurens?"

"I think I know," replied Candler. The cross-examination ended there.

Candler further maintained that the President was not saying the pipe lines were vital to national defense, but merely was calling for an investigation to find out if they were.

Railroads Criticized. Representative Walter Harrison, of Jenkins, accused railroad management in the southeast of being the most backward in the country, saying it was time the railroads realized they were doing business in 1941 instead of 1920.

"Their policy seems to have been to 'hell with the public,'" he shouted. "But the shoe is now on the other foot."

He declared that since 1933 the railroads' taxes to the state had decreased approximately $800,000 and steadily were on the decline. He pointed out, however, that gasoline taxes are on the increase.

"This country is facing an emergency," he continued. "We are in this war whether we want to admit it or not. Let's give Franklin Roosevelt the green light."

Cites Employment.

Representative W. H. H. Jones, of Richmond, emphasized the loss of employment that would result from building the pipe line, declaring that for every man hired by the pipe line, 15 would lose their jobs with the railroads.

Representative W. R. Blease, of Brooks, urged that the bills pass on the grounds that they would contribute to progress and national defense.

"We passed this bill two years ago and there seems to be no reason why we should not pass it now when, for all we know, we will be at war in 90 days."

The first indication that members of the house were tiring of the steady flow of oratory on the pipe line bills came late yesterday afternoon when Representative Robert Elliott, of Muscogee, asked unanimous consent that a vote be taken at noon today. Immediately several legislators objected and Elliott did not press his request by making a motion.

The house adjourned at 4:30 o'clock over the objections of many members who declared the lower chamber would face the possibility of night sessions unless it stayed in session and eliminated it of the pipe line speeches.

Union 'Racket' Described in House Report

by obtain work," the committee declared.

Representative Pickett explained that his proposal would make labor unions a body politic, giving them a right to sue and a liability to be sued, to provide for filing and keeping of certain records of the union, to fix the maximum fees and to prohibit assessments that they might charge, to provide for a suspension of the charter and the right to do business when labor organizations fail to pay judgments against them, to provide methods of redress for breach of contract or other legal wrongs of certain labor organizations.

Incorporation Proposed. The bill provides that all locals doing business or collecting dues or assessments in this state must be incorporated with a capital stock of not less than $2,500, of which $1,000 must be paid in before commencing business.

Delving into labor conditions in Atlanta the committee found the following: "That in the Atlanta area there were two local unions which required white men to deal with Negroes in securing membership in unions as a prerequisite to obtain employment in this state. Numerous instances were submitted as proof that this situation prevailed in Fulton county and area adjacent thereto."

The committee found that initiation fees demanded by various local unions varied from $10 to $300.

Racket Charged. "We find further," said the committee, "that the failure of one local union to give credit for the amount paid to another local of the same craft was not fair and equitable and may be considered as a racket. This practice sometimes caused a man to pay two initiation fees in part or in whole before becoming a member of the union."

The committee asserted "the practice of collecting initiation fees in whole or in part before ascertaining the competency of the applicant has been abused and as conducted in defense projects is a racket that is very detrimental."

Such conditions as were outlined in the report, the committee said, "have, to some extent, impeded the progress of the various defense projects," adding that "there have been many experienced and capable workmen prohibited from working on the projects because of their inability to pay the necessary initiation fees."

Personnel of Committee. Members of the committee emphasized that because of their limited time they were unable to make a thorough and detailed investigation "as seemed warranted by the results obtained from the investigation made."

Serving on the committee were Representatives Fred Hand, of Mitchell; Cicero Kendrick, of Fulton; J. B. Davis, of Coweta; Roscoe Pickett Jr., of Picken; E. E. Yawn, of Dodge; and Perry L. Pittman, of Berrien.

Representative W. H. H. Jones, of Richmond, emphasized the loss of employment that would result from building the pipe line, declaring that for every man hired by the pipe line, 15 would lose their jobs with the railroads.

WPA Officials Find Schools Here Unclean

Boys' and Tech High Gymnasium 'In Need of Janitors.'

WPA officials yesterday supported charges of unclean conditions at Boys' and Tech High schools, based on a visit in the afternoon, following publication of a letter by Professor H. O. Smith, principal of Boys High school, declaring the principal offending building is used "mainly for WPA recreational programs, thus open to assemblages other than our students."

In reply, it was declared: "WPA recreation program uses the gymnasium only in the evenings for an adult program. In assuming its part of janitorial services, four persons are assigned to the building to keep it clean. These people arrive a little after 5 o'clock in the afternoon and thoroughly clean the building, including the toilet, before the adult recreational groups arrive. "These four persons clean up the mess of the day pupils and the reports are that it is messy most of the time. At the conclusion of an evening's recreation program these four people again clean the gymnasium, leaving it in good condition for the next morning's school session. The workers we have on this project are thoroughly reliable people, and reports are that they can be depended upon."

Life Insurance in action!

BY ITS VERY NATURE, Life Insurance is an active, continuing force—a living force in the homes of millions who share its benefits.

Last year Metropolitan visited many homes in times of family crisis, for a total of over $182,000,000 was paid on account of death claims to scores of thousands of beneficiaries of Metropolitan policyholders. Dividends, matured endowments, annuity payments, disability, and health and accident claims, and other benefits paid or credited to living policyholders during the year amounted to more than $426,000,000. The total of almost $609,000,000 for payments to policyholders and beneficiaries is a record high for the Company.

Metropolitan funds, invested for the benefit of its policyholders, continued to play a part in the economic structure of the nation. These funds aided in financing Government activities, helped to keep industry humming and men in jobs, to erect public and private buildings, and assisted farmers to own their farms and to keep them in proper repair. However, the low interest rates generally prevailing, continued to have their effect on the Company's earnings and consequently on dividends to policyholders.

Moreover, through its Welfare activities, its nursing service for eligible policyholders, its research, its health and safety literature and advertising, Metropolitan again contributed to the task of bringing better health to America. The death rate of Metropolitan policyholders as a whole continued to be low, and mortality among Industrial policyholders was approximately the same as the 1939 figure, a record low for this group.

Metropolitan is a mutual life insurance company. This means that the assets of the Company are held for policyholders and their beneficiaries. The value of these assets will ultimately be paid out for their benefit... and for them only.

The United States Naval Aviation Command Selection Board for the southeastern district yesterday opened an office in the Mortgage Guaranty building to facilitate the work of selecting air cadets from this section. The district comprises Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Members of the board are Lieutenant Commander L. D. Southworth, who was ordered here from Pensacola, where he was in charge of a primary training squadron; Lieutenant Commander S. M. Nordhouse, from New York; Lieutenant Commander L. H. Goldsmith, Medical Corps, a native Atlantan, who recently completed the aviation medical examiner's course at Pensacola; Lieutenant W. C. Grover, also from Pensacola, and Lieutenant (junior grade) T. Parker. All are Naval Reserve officers.

Many of the prospective candidates examined will take their primary flight training at the Naval Reserve Air Base at Camp Gordon, now being completed, it was said.

Candidates must have at least two years college work and be in good physical condition. At the present time, due to the expansion of the nation's flying forces, there is no quota limit.

Members of the board inspected the Camp Gordon base yesterday and expressed satisfaction with the progress made.

British To Shut Plants in Hunt For Workers

Move To Provide More Men for Expanding Arms Industry.

LONDON, March 4.—(P)—Britain took steps today to close down or merge from 50 to 90 of her largest and oldest industrial lines in order to furnish workers for her still expanding armament plants.

The action, announced in the house of commons by Oliver Lyttelton, president of the Board of Trade, was expected to affect 1,000,000 workers, of whom 750,000 may be freed for war industry.

Lyttelton said phosphy, pottery, the major textile industries, boots, shoes and some others—industries which have made British trade marks known the world over—would be the first to be closed or merged.

Workers from these industries "provide the main sources of factory-trained labor for munitions," he explained.

No legislation is required, Lyttelton added, because the government's wartime powers already give it control over the use of raw materials and the right to conscript labor and factories.

Germany Warns Greece She Cannot Serve Two Masters.

BERLIN, March 4.—(P)—Greece was put on notice by German spokesmen today that she cannot "serve two masters" while informed sources acknowledged, without explanation, that Hitler had sent a personal message to the president of Turkey.

The same quarters assumed a hands-off attitude toward Russia's disapproval of Bulgaria's acquiescence in letting German troops enter the country. They reiterated that Germany and the Soviet Union are friends and said Russia was informed of the German plan in Bulgaria last Friday, the day before the troops moved in.

With this German "security army" still pouring into Bulgaria, there was a noticeable increase here in the frigidity with which Germany regards Greece, but no one was willing or able to say how far the Germans would go toward forcing the British from Greece.

Neutral observers believed some maneuver was in progress to keep Europe's war from spreading into the Near East and creating another front for Germany.

Reports began to appear in the Greek press yesterday, including explosions in an oil refinery at Zagreb, and they were attributed to "British agents." The same allegations were made in respect to Rumania and Bulgaria before they were brought under Axis sway.

Nazi Raiders Rain Bombs on Town in Wales

Reports Indicate Cardiff Again Target of Fliers From Germany.

LONDON, March 5.—(Wednesday)—(P)—German bombers came over South Wales in successive waves again last night and showered a town with thousands of incendiary bombs in raids that lasted into the morning.

One of the raiders was seen to crash into the Bristol channel and burn and a second was reported shot down off the Welsh coast.

(This would indicate that the raiders were centering on either Cardiff, heavily raided the previous night, or Swansea.)

Upon London itself the night attack was slight. A village on the Thames estuary leading to London was hit with high explosives.

During the day the relief of Cardiff was urgently pursued. American Red Cross ambulances sped 160 miles to Cardiff while the Germans were pouring down their firebombs and following them with high explosives.

The R.A.F. was retaliating at the same time with Cologne as the main target in an attack which covered a large part of the industrial area of the German Rhineland, the docks and quays at Brest, France, Ostend and Boulogne, and the railway sidings at Calais and Nazi airdromes in occupied France.

at the CITY HALL

Mayor LeCraw yesterday signed a formal contract between the city and Robert & Company, engineers, to expedite start of work on rebuilding of the fire razed portion of the municipal auditorium. He kept all other measures on his desk for study, but said he wanted to do everything possible to speed rebuilding of the damaged structure. Under the contract, the company will provide plans and inspection for 5 1/2 per cent.

The city personnel board yesterday changed the title of Stafford Graydon from acting personnel director to personnel director to avoid future complications. Graydon was named to the post when Personnel Director Carl T. Sutherland left for a year's military service. Under the law there is no provision for an acting director.

Each page of contracts between the city of Atlanta and others will bear Mayor LeCraw's initials in the future. LeCraw said the initialing is a general business practice to identify original agreements.

British Naval Forces Invade Norwegian Isle

Nazis Admit 'Number' of German Prisoners Taken by Raiders.

BERLIN, March 4.—(P)—Light British naval forces landed at an undisputed island off northern Norway today and took a number of German and Norwegian prisoners, the German news agency DNB reported tonight.

"Subsequently, it was added, the British 'withdrew'."

The agency said the British, after bombarding the "unfortified" island and sinking several fishing vessels, landed troops for a quick foray.

The number of German and Norwegian prisoners taken was not stated.

The British withdrawal was described as hasty, and it was said that their ships immediately left Norwegian waters.

The action, said DNB, was of "no military value and merely intended for reasons of propaganda."

The British retired last June 9 from Narvik, their last untenable hold in Norway. The retirement was described then by the Norwegian government news agency as a "necessity of the war." At that time the French were hard pressed.

LONDON SILENT ON NORWEGIAN RAID

LONDON, March 4.—(P)—Available British sources made no comment tonight on German reports that British naval forces had landed on an island off northern Norway, taken prisoners and then withdrawn.

SAYS

Helen and Paul Seydel Sail For United States on April 24

... THE S. S. EXCAMBION, sailing from Lisbon on April 24, will have among its interesting passengers Helen and Paul Seydel Jr., who are returning to their native shores. They spent the past 12 months in Zurich, Switzerland, where Paul won his doctorate in science at the university. During the recent carnival festivities, blond and slender Helen was selected as the most beautiful young woman attending the ball.

Paul, as you know, is the elder son of Mildred and Paul Seydel and Helen's parents are Colonel John Clarke, U. S. A., and Mrs. Clarke, former residents of Atlanta. Her father was head of the Fourth Corps Medical Corps of the United States Army while he lived here.

Helen is particularly talented in art, and while abroad she pursued her studies in Brussels, one of the art centers of Europe.

Upon their arrival in Atlanta along toward the first week in May, Helen and Paul will reopen their attractive residence on Gladstone road in the Northside drive section of the city. Their relatives and friends are anxiously awaiting to be regaled with their interesting experiences in war-torn Europe.

... ALTHOUGH she adores her new home in Panama, Betty McConnell Woodward felt herself possessed of a "hankering" to be back in Atlanta during dogwood time. Her desire soon will be fulfilled, for next Wednesday she will land in Charleston, S. C., where she will be met by her mother, Mrs. S. E. McConnell, with whom she will motor here the following day. According to her mother, Betty "misses nothing," and since her marriage to Lieutenant Walden Woodward six months ago, she has enjoyed visiting various interesting places near Fort Davis, in Cristobal, Colon, where they are stationed.

Betty's friends are inclined to agree with her mother, for she has been to Amador, where she attended the Palleria, the equivalent of New Orleans Mardi Gras carnivals; has taken a trip to Sangias island, and went to Porto Bella for the fiesta of the Black Christ, besides spending a week at Rio Harbor.

She will be in Atlanta for a month as the guest of her parents at their home on Springdale road, and during her stay she will provide the inspiration for a veritable whirl of informal social affairs being planned by her numerous friends.

... TWO SURPRISE birthday parties, a trip to Miami, and preparations for her daughter's spring vacation trip, have kept Mrs. Campbell McKenna in a mad rush during the last few days. She has dashed from her country home, Argyle, into Atlanta several times a day to get things lined up for this combination of events.

It all began when she received word from her sub-deb daughter, Harriett, a student at the Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, Conn., of her plans for a spring vacation. Harriett will leave the latter part of March for a visit to her roommate, Esther Ralston, of Dixon, Ill., at fashionable and picturesque Palm Springs, Cal. Harriett and Esther will leave school on March 19 by plane for the west coast, and will go directly to be ensconced at Smoke Tree Ranch, the spacious estate of Esther's parents, at Palm Springs.

Last evening Mrs. McKenna's son, William Jr., who is a student at Darlington School in Rome, received a grand surprise when he returned from a shopping expedition into Atlanta for Victrola records. A group of his friends had gathered at the farm for a surprise dinner party, just like "grown-ups," too, for Graham Jackson was on hand to supply music for the affair.

Now Mrs. McKenna is making plans to leave today for Miami Beach, where she will join her brother, Orme Campbell, at their home, The Postage Stamp. On Thursday evening she will entertain at another birthday party, this time for Orme, who will observe his anniversary tomorrow.

... GLIMPSED AT War Relief Fashion Show: Mrs. Albert Thornton receiving applause for her splendid work on behalf of the British War Relief Society. ... Mrs. H. W. Indell observing her daughter, Barbara, one of the attractive models. ... Mrs. Berrien Moore looking grand in a black and white print evening dress. ... Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boynton enjoying a good view of the stage from front-row seats. ... Mrs. Louis Johnson wearing a handsome silver fox jacket and toque with her black dress. ... Mrs. Gordon Jones wearing a lovely evening wrap of ciel blue woolen. ... Mrs. Gartine Jordan being presented a make-up kit which was among the attractive prizes awarded. ... Mrs. Stuart Witham Jr. modeling a white lace evening gown with white calla lilies at her waist and in her hair. ... Florrie Sisson talking with friends and wearing a military double-breasted suit. ... Mrs. E. A. Peeples applauding the models as they walked down the runway.

Mother: "Here's your box of books and toys that we save for rainy days. Later, when dad has had his nap, we'll pop some corn if you want to."

Happy days don't just happen.

Father: "For pity's sake, can't you children find something to do besides quarrel? I should be able to have a Sunday nap in peace and quiet."

Olivia's Salary Starts Upward Trend Since "Strawberry Blonde."

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, March 4.—The Clark Gables are receiving "bundles for baby" from excited fans all over the country. But the gifts are premature, "I wish it were true," says Clark. And Carole echoes the words. Here are two people who have everything they want—except a child, but they have not given up hoping.

Charles Laughton's picture, "Almost an Angel," is being held up while Director Henry Koster searches for a leading lady, "who looks both sweet and innocent." She's a little hard to find. They wanted Olivia de Havilland, but her price has bounded upward since "Strawberry Blonde." Ginger Rogers was next approached, but her loan-out price is now $200,000, which is too high even for a girl who can look sweetly innocent. . . . Barbara Stanwyck's English accent in "The Lady Eve" is the result of coaching by English Actress Heather Thatcher, who should have known better. It's pretty awful. I liked most of the rest of the picture though, and boy, oh, boy, the clothes Barbara wears! As a fashion parade alone, it's worth the price of admission.

Priscilla Lane is in for a pleasant surprise. For the first time in Warners' history, a player will get an increase in salary—without a contract "must" and without going on strike. Priscilla's performance in "Miss Wheelwright Discovers America" is so good that her bosses are turning handsprings, will raise her salary before she can ask for it, and are holding back the picture for September release to allow for a bigger selling campaign. . . . And that reminds me, I am told that Ann Sheridan is able to hold out this long on her fight for more money from Warners because her agent is advancing her $500 a week. I find this a trifle hard to believe.

Deanna Durbin's fiancé, Vaughn Paul, who looks like a younger edition of Gable—even to the protruding ears—has been offered a screen test at Universal. A picture with Deanna and her bridegroom-to-be would be something, wouldn't it? Vaughn is more interested in the producing side of pictures and has declined the offer. He'll probably end up doing both—a la Orson Welles. No, don't ask me when you will see Orson's "Citizen Kane." "We are looking for a theater" is the nonsatisfactory reply to "when will it be released?"

"I've got to have this sequence finished by Saturday," Sam Goldwyn told one of his writers. "Even if it takes you until Monday."

Guard Against These Germs

By Dr. William Brady.

If all the ear-nose specialists would build swimming pools and offer them for the use of the public in their communities they would be kept busy taking care of the ear, mastoid and sinus infections suffered by people using the pools. A young woman writes that she has heard this statement several times, and she wonders how much truth there is in it. She wants to take swimming and diving lessons, but her father objects, because he fears she may contract some such ear, mastoid or sinus infection in the swimming pool. Daughter can see no harm in a few diving and swimming lessons. She doesn't intend to spend all her time diving and swimming, just an hour or so two or three days a week, and surely, she thinks, that much can't affect her hearing or anything. Besides she knows lots of girls who use the swimming pool several days a week and never have any trouble. The exercise is fine. Won't I please help her in this matter. A favorable answer from me will win her father over easily. Father thinks my advice is pretty sound.

All right, kid, I'll let you down as easily as I can, but remember we fathers have to hang together. In the first place, you may be too young to know it, for I have piped down lately, but I'm prejudiced against the bathtub, even though one person at a time uses it. If I had my way there'd be no bath tubs, except in institutions; in private homes only shower baths.

The same prejudice applies to swimming pools, only with far greater force, for a swimming pool is a glorified bathtub used by many persons at a time. Still, if the particular pool you would use is reasonably sanitary, if the water is changed at not too rare intervals, if proper care is taken to exclude persons with any obvious or potentially infectious ailment or disease, and if the water in the pool is constantly chlorinated or otherwise disinfected, I believe that if I were in your father's place I'd consent to your swimming and diving lessons, provided—

And this is a precaution I believe every patron of a swimming pool or even the old swimmer's hole or river, lake or beach bathing place where many persons use the water, should invariably take—

Provided you plug both ears before entering the water and breathe entirely through the open mouth while in the water. The latter may be easy for a trained swimmer and, and a to do, but a novice or one not particularly skilled in swimming and diving should wear a suitable nose clip to keep the nostrils closed.

Skin Needs Conditioner For Spring

By Winifred Ware.

A non-drying masque which leaves the skin fresh and moist is something every woman should know about. And it's doubly important if such a creamy one is on sale. That's what we have found—a masque with a romantic name, one that does romantic things to your skin and the price during March is only one dollar.

The cool, refreshing feel of this cream on the face and neck is delightful—as if the skin had been brushed with early morning dew and what's more, the skin will retain that dewy freshness, so flattering and youthifying to one's skin.

It is the perfect preparation for conditioning the skin for spring to overcome a dull winter skin, usually rough and dry from wintry winds and heat. Imperfect complexioners are not at all a suitable match for new clothes and gay colors. This pink cream, often referred to as a facial cocktail—and it does give your skin a pick-up—is a definite aid in refining the texture of your skin, in overcoming an undue dryness and in imparting to the skin a fresh, moist beauty. It's a grand skin stimulant.

A masque of this type should be used at least once a week and really should be one of your beauty musts. However, if the skin is excessively dry and needs extra stimulation, use this treatment twice a week. Before using, be sure the skin is thoroughly cleansed and without any traces of cream or oil. Then you spread the cream over the face and throat, and let it remain 10 or 15 minutes in which time it should be completely dried. Remove the cream with cold water, and to further beautify the skin, go over this surface with your skin freshener.

Use this masque as a quick pick-up for special occasions and go forth with a refreshed skin and a blush of glowing, radiant freshness.

If you'll call me, I'll tell you the name of this masque and where you may buy it. Write to Winifred Ware at The Constitution and enclose a stamped envelope if you don't live in Atlanta.

MY DAY: It's Cruel To Tease Those Who Stutter

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday.—Mr. and Mrs. Hendrik Van Loon and Miss Grace Castagnetta, who played with the National Symphony Orchestra at their concert on Sunday afternoon, have been our guests over the weekend.

Saturday morning I had a brief conference with the members of the National Religion and Labor Foundation, who were in Washington for the first national conference on theological education and labor. They had visited a number of government officials and were interested in seeing the White House. I was glad to have an opportunity of seeing so many young people from theological seminaries, as well as older people who are ministers themselves. There also were one or two leaders in the labor movement who are members of this group, among them my old friend, Miss Lucy Mason, whom I was particularly glad to see.

Yesterday I had an opportunity to spend a little while with Mr. Edward Bruce, and we had a number of guests at luncheon, including Mrs. George Kaufman, Miss Ruth Gordon and Mrs. Alice Duer Miller. The rest of the day was fairly quiet. This morning I am going to New York City, where I have one or two afternoon engagements.

A recent letter has brought my attention to the fact that those of us who do not suffer certain handicaps often fail to be able to imagine what people go through who are handicapped. The letter came to me from one of the speech teachers in the New York City school system, who makes a plea that those of us who make fun of the stutterer should stop and think how hard it is for "a sensitive person who cannot ask a simple question or use the telephone."

She contends that our light-hearted jokes bring shame and suffering to many people. I can quite see that there would be no element of mirth in a joke when you yourself are the victim.

The United States Office of Education, which is part of the Federal Security Agency, is issuing a bulletin under an "Information Exchange" on "Education and the National Defense." This is a new service and is intended to act as a clearing house for ideas and material on education and national defense.

Teachers who want to help in the defense effort of their country can do three things now. They can tell the Office of Education what kind of help they would like to have through it. They can explain what developments they consider important to their particular field of work in the present situation. They can send materials to the exchange which can be used by perhaps other groups in connection with the defense program.

Education is such a vital part of national defense that I think Dr. John Studebaker has made a valuable contribution in developing this exchange.

Miss Weida Davis will honor the bride-elect this evening at a miscellaneous shower at her home on St. Augustine place, the guests to include a group of close friends.

Saturday, March 15, Miss Baker will be central figure at the miscellaneous shower at which Mrs. J. A. Stone will be hostess at her home on Forrest road.

Misses Kitty Burger and Virginia Turner have selected Sunday, March 23, as the date for the buffet supper at which they will fete Miss Baker and Mr. Stanton, this affair to be held at the home of Miss Burger on West Shadowlawn avenue.

Miss Zelda Smith Weds Mr. Schwartz

The Georgian Terrace Hotel was the scene of a beautiful ceremony at noon Sunday, March 2, when Miss Zelda Smith became the bride of Max Schwartz, of Mobile, Ala.

Rabbi Harry H. Epstein officiated before an assemblage of relatives and friends, while a program of music was presented by Mrs. George S. Poole and her daughter, Miss Martha Jeanna Poole.

The ballroom, where the ceremony took place, was artistically decorated. The improvised altar was banked with festoons of fern and smilax flanked by tall candelabra holding lighted candles.

The bride entered with her brother, Dr. Simon H. Smith, who gave her in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and Willie Smith, who was the best man. She was lovely in an aquamarine dress with brown accessories, and a corsage of bronze orchids. She carried a small white Bible with streamers of lilacs of the valley.

The maid-of-honor, Miss Celia Klein, wore a brown and beige ensemble. Following the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Simon H. Smith were hosts at a seated dinner, after which the young couple left for a wedding trip to New Orleans. They will reside in Mobile, Ala.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Fannie Cohen, of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Abe Smith and son, of Spartanburg, S. C.; Willie and Julius Smith, of Greensboro, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Sol Isenberg and son, Bernard Isenberg, of Gordon, Ga.; Miss Jerry Isenberg, of the University of Georgia; Mr. and Mrs. Abe Fogel and family and Miss Ida Fogel, of Augusta; B. Schwartz, father of the bridegroom; Mrs. J. M. Stewart, of the bridegroom's family, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Frisch, all of Mobile; Mrs. H. Rotter, of Philadelphia; Mrs. M. Metzstein, of Long Island City, N. Y., and Martin Kalman, of Fort McClellan, Ala.

Peachtree on the Beach

By MAUDE KIMBALL MASSENGALE.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 4. When Ann Hurt goes to Atlanta as the bride of Hagood Clarke Jr., she will have many reminders of the beach, for at each of her lovely parties some favor or gift has been symbolic. At the luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. John E. Shuey and Mrs. Warren Quillian (former Atlantans) at the Pansau a "horse conk shell" from Nassau graced the center of the table and was filled with jonquils, asters and daisies. A miniature bride was created of tiny shells and favors were shell containers filled with flowers.

Guests from Atlanta were Sally Jenkins, Ann Irby, Mesdames Walter Colquitt Jr., Franz Stewart, Hershel Auxier, Melbourne Martin, Robert Ludwig and Stephen Freese.

Practically the same group attended the luncheon given by Mrs. Vassar Woolley for Ann on Saturday at the Good hotel. . . . Mrs. James R. Townley, who wore one of the season's smartest prints in red and white at Mrs. H. Strongman Miller's party, was among the additional young married group. . . . Mrs. Woolley also used the shell favors and decorations, combining with spring flowers and broke the news that her daughter, Mildred Seydel, who is very popular down here, would not be here for the wedding on Saturday evening.

Another prominent young Atlanta visitor, Mrs. Richard E. Cotton, is being fêted here. Mrs. Cotton is the former Eleanor Julian, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo S. Julian. . . . She is a member of the Atlanta Junior League, having transferred from Miami, and many of the league girls here are entertaining in her honor.

On Saturday she was a guest at the closing day at the Hialeah race track in the party given by Mrs. John H. Cheatham Jr. Friday morning found her the center of a coffee party given by Mrs. Carl E. Dunaway. . . . Thursday she was entertained at luncheon in the Patio at Palm Beach by Mrs. Robert Morris Doyle, and the largest party of this week is to be given by her mother Wednesday at her home in Grove Park. The occasion will be a coffee party, one of the newest forms of entertainments for the Junior Leagues. . . . For the races Eleanor chose a brown ensemble, and the day being cold, wore it with a becoming squirrel coat and matching turban.

Mrs. H. Clifton Dobbs and Mrs. Joseph F. Stewart are painting Florida birds when not attending parties here. They are guests of Mrs. Dobbs' daughter, Mrs. William D. Pawley on Pine Tree drive and were honored with a family dinner that was marked by exquisite appointments. . . . Atlantans present were Dr. and Mrs. Franz Stewart, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Stewart Jr. and their guest, Mrs. Alice Stewart Spalding, of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hahr, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Nolan, Mrs. Lillian Finn and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Dobbs Jr. . . . Mrs. Pawley's mirrored table was centered with pink roses and blue Queen Ann lace.

One of the smartest parties of the week will be the luncheon that Mrs. Lindsay Hopkins Jr. will give at the Surf Club Wednesday for her mother, Mrs. James Allen Smith. Mrs. Smith will be guest of honor for a cruise on the "Dorothy H." the new boat Mr. Hopkins recently gave Dorothy for a birthday present. Mrs. Smith is one of the most popular of the winter visitors. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haverty are at the Flamingo. . . . Mrs. Earl Hardwick was one of the most attractively gowned guests at Mrs. Frederick G. Baner's cocktail party. . . . She chose "Miami" blue

To Relieve Bad Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Swift Acting, and Saves Big Money. Easily Mixed.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any drugist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiaccol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

The altar was banked with palms and calla lilies with candelabra and tapers at either end.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Rev. J. F. Ford, of Glendale, S. C., and her attendants were Miss Sara Collier, maid of honor, and Mrs. Madison Monroe Cates, sister of the bride, who was matron of honor. The latter wore turquoise taffeta dresses, featuring long puffed sleeves and sweetheart necklines. The floor-length skirts were of net and lace. Dainty veils of turquoise with pink roses formed a coronet, and they carried bouquets of pink roses, sweet peas and delphinium.

Miss Hardman Wed To C. F. Lovelace

The marriage of Miss Sarah Hardman to Clyde T. Lovelace, of Chicago, took place at 5 o'clock yesterday at the home of the bride's brother, J. Raymond Hardman, on Moreland place. The ceremony was solemnized by Rev. T. Davis in the presence of the family and a few close friends. A musical program was presented by Mrs. Mary Griffith Dobbs, harpist, and George W. Davis, vocalist.

An improvised altar was formed of palms and ferns, amid which were placed tall pedestals of pink gladioli, pink snapdragons and Easter lilies. Flanking either side of the altar were seven-branched candelabra holding burning pink tapers.

Mrs. Robert H. Hardman was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a dusty rose crepe frock with a short jacket and cluster of talisman roses. The bridegroom was attended by Robert H. Hardman, brother of the bride, as best man.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a dressmaker suit of surf blue wool. Her accessories were of saddle tan, worn with a matching felt hat with a soft puff veil extending to the waist. Her costume was completed by a cluster of bronze orchids.

Mrs. Lovelace is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Hardman, pioneer residents of Atlanta. Mr. Lovelace is the son of Mrs. J. F. Beaver, of Marietta. Crackers' Pitching and Catching Outlook Best Since 1938 Season

BY JACK TROY

Castle San Marcos ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 4.—The Castle San Marcos is approximately the same distance from our hotel as the tee is from the green on the 533-yard 15th hole on the East Coast golf course. Three good wood shots.

I am keeping check on the number of players who visit the Castle San Marcos, which American acquisition changed to Fort Marion in honor of Francis Marion, the Swamp Fox.

There is a lot of history tied up in the ancient fortress commanding the Mantanzas river harbor. In fact, the Atlanta Crackers represent the first organized force from Georgia which has not tried to take the castle by storm.

Back in the 17th century General Oglethorpe twice tried in vain to cross the great moat, but he never got closer than the outer gates.

Here in the 20th century you can go the route for a dime a copy, but for some odd reason the force from Georgia is not concerned with invasion.

Baseball players, as a rule, don't go in for sight-seeing. They are a lot like inhabitants of towns who never take the time to see the home attractions which lure visitors from all over the world.

Or, if they do see a historic spot, they are apt to do as Jennings Poindexter did when he quaffed deeply at the Fountain of Youth.

"Geez," he said, unromantically, "you need a chaser with this stuff."

Object Lesson There is a real object lesson for overweight ball players in the courtroom at the Castle San Marcos.

At the conclusion of the Seminole war, General Hernandez captured all the remaining Indians who had not escaped into the Everglades. Among them was Coacoochee, son of King Philip, and Hadjo, a medicine man.

They shrewdly connived for their liberty, these amazing redmen. By fasting they reduced themselves to living skeletons. They cut their blankets into strips for use as ropes. Then they worked up to a ventilator, 18 feet from the floor, by digging niches in the masonry. They still may be seen.

A most formidable barrier failed to stop them. They worked their way through horizontal iron bars only eight inches apart, and escaped into the moat below. Coacoochee climbed down the rope, but Hadjo fell the entire 25 feet.

The great Chief Osceola was imprisoned at the time and died a year later when he and the remnants of his people were transferred to Fort Moultrie in Charleston harbor.

It cost Juan Ponce de Leon his life to seek a fabled fountain of youth. Two years after he first discovered "a land of flowers" on Easter Sunday and named it Florida—the year was 1513—Ponce de Leon made another trip from Spain and the adventures were attacked by Indians.

An arrow lodged in the hip of Juan Ponce de Leon and he died in Cuba.

A little later, but better late than never, perhaps, the Atlanta Crackers, who play at home in a ball park named Ponce de Leon, have found St. Augustine.

Can't Avoid It There is hardly any way to avoid the historical side of the ancient city, for the historical takes preference over the modern. History is a business.

After spending a few days here you automatically know that St. Augustine was under four flags—the Spanish, English, Confederate Battle and the American. (One flag the city clearly would like to have is the Florida State League pennant.)

What you won't know about Juan Ponce de Leon and Castle San Marcos won't be worth telling, and you will be intrigued, too, by the mystery of the old dungeons and the shell mound builders.

Imagination runs rampant at these places and the old Indian and Spanish burial grounds. It is here that civilization as we know it began.

The Spaniards came this way before the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth Rock. The Huguenots came to escape religious persecution. And so Christianity on this continent also had its beginning here.

I do not know why I should stray away from sports to discuss history and religion, except that elsewhere in the world small-minded individuals are endeavoring to tear down the very things for which this quaint old city stands in historical and religious significance.

Oh, well, the Crackers are bearing down in a warm Florida sun and the crack of the bat in the American way of life has a lot more appeal than the roar of cannonfire or the staccato bark of a machinegun.

Fay Murray Death of Fay Murray, Nashville owner, saddened Earl Mann, president of the Crackers. Mann described Mr. Murray as "an important figure" in Southern League affairs.

"The league will miss him. He kept Nashville in baseball through thick and thin. Why, the Vols even lost money last year while winning a pennant," Mann pointed out.

The Cracker president has made tentative arrangements to attend the funeral of the popular Nashville sportsman.

Death Claims Fay L. Murray, Owner of Vols

Brief Illness Halts Guiding Hand of Nashville Club at 60.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 4.—(AP)—The hand of a highly successful businessman-owning 60-year-old Fay L. Murray, which guided the Nashville Vols from the depths of the Southern Association to Dixie baseball supremacy last year, was halted by death today.

Murray, president of the Kennett, Murray & Company, livestock buying firm, and at one time connected with the Indianapolis and Minneapolis baseball clubs in executive capacities, died at St. Thomas Hospital after a brief illness.

Although he considered his baseball connections more as a hobby than a business, Murray directed his efforts in the game toward as complete a success as he had realized himself in climbing from one-time St. Paul stockyard boy to president of one of the south's largest livestock firms.

SATISFYING SEASON. It was with a great pride that he watched his Vols remain in the lead of the Southern Association from opening day to the final game of the 1940 campaign and then roll on to a Dixie Series victory over Houston, of the Texas League.

"This has been the most satisfying season I have ever known," he commented last September. "The employment of Larry Gilbert—almost a fixture at New Orleans—as manager was regarded by Murray as the 'best thing I ever did for Nashville, for me, for everybody.' Their association was a very close one and friends said he often expressed the hope that Gilbert ultimately would become the sole owner of the Vols.

Murray's first executive connection with baseball was in 1920 when he became president of the Indianapolis club, then a member of the old Federal League. Later he bought the tottering Nashville Vols, Murray stepped in to purchase his hometown franchise. He immediately started to improve its standing.

Funeral services will be held from his home here at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday. Burial will be in the Paul Friday at 11 a. m.

Jake Breaks Record With 9 Bevy Finds

Ariel, War Admiral Tighten Race With Good Performances.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., March 4.—(AP)—Good performances by two dogs in the national field trials this afternoon tightened up a wide open race for the coveted 1941 bird dog championship.

Ariel, a pointer owned by A. G. C. Sage, of New York city, showed ability to run, hunt, find, point and handle game, as well as willingness to back and respond to his handler, Clyde Morris. He was charged with a few misuses, his general work was good. The latter part of his race was not on a par with the first two hours, but he scored five bevy finds.

On the other hand, War Admiral, his brace mate, looked better during the latter part of his heat than he did earlier. Admiral never did lose his punch and finished strongly, after pointing four bevies.

Mississippi Broomhild Jake, a veteran pointer, broke all precedent set so far for finding bevies when he uncovered nine bevies this morning, but his game-handling was mediocre and he disappeared several times. Jake is owned by B. C. Goss, of Cleveland, Ohio.

The 1940 champion, Lester's Enjoy Wahoo, apparently sacrificed his chances for a repeat by getting out of hand.

Baseball Teams To Meet Tonight

Amateur baseball teams which pined to contest the Dixie Series just this week sanctioned the organization meeting tonight at 7 o'clock at Reeder-McGaughey Sporting Goods Company at 52 Northwest Broad street.

The American Baseball Congress just this week sanctioned the tournament that will be held here in August for Sunday league teams. The winner will be sent to Nashville to the mid-south tourney, the winner of which will be sent to Battle Creek, Mich., to the national meet. This tourney will be the only local meet which will be authorized or recognized by the American Baseball Congress, it is understood.

Celtics and All-Americans Waive Foul Rule

Claude Bond To Referee First Pro Game Here Thursday Night.

No player will be banished from the professional basketball game Thursday night at Warren Arena for fighting or fouling. Both the Celtics and Kautsky's All-Americans who are making their debut in the south have agreed to waive the foul rule.

Fouls will be called, because, as officials point out, it will be a ball game and not an alley fight. However, basketball as the pros play it is given to the players. Fouls are seldom called unless a player is attacked while in the act of shooting.

(In amateur basketball a player is put out of the game when he commits his fourth foul.)

Claude Bond, athletic trainer at Georgia Tech and former Southern and American Association baseball umpire, will referee. Bond has the knack of keeping things under control without trying to steal the show from the players. He is an experienced, competent cage official.

Georgia fans will see one of the fastest-breaking outfits in basketball when the All-Americans take the floor. Led by Jewell Young, who is Bobby McDermott's chief rival, the Indianapolis team, which is composed largely of former Big Ten aces, expects to run the Celtics ragged.

The main game will go on about 9 o'clock and will be preceded by three exciting golf preliminaries. Walthour & Hood lasses play Piedmont College girls from Demorest, Ga., in the curtain-raiser at 6:30. Sears-Roebuck girls and Sewell Service clash at 7:15, in a game which will decide the Walthour League championship. Sewell won the state championship recently by beating Sears one point. The semi-final attraction pits Dixie Steel against General Shoe

CELTICS IN TRAINING—Here are Davey Banks (left) and Pat Herlihy, of the Original Celtics who describe this scene as training for their professional clash with Kautsky's All-Americans at Warren Arena Thursday night. Banks is known as a clown in the south, but in northern pro circles is regarded as a two-fisted warrior always eager for a fight. Davey had three battles and came out ahead in each at Cleveland the other night when the Celtics beat the Detroit Eagles.

There were 55 entries for the tourney, which will be run off tomorrow, Thursday and Friday.

Runner-up to Miss Miley—playing here for the first time—was Mrs. Mark McGarry, of St. Petersburg, former southern and state champion, who carded 84. Tied for third and fourth were Mrs. Tom P. Gallatin of Tampa, defending champion, and Mrs. James Morphet, of Winter Haven, each with 88.

Bobby Moore Named Captain Of 1942 Georgia Cage Squad

ATHENS, Ga., March 4.—Bobby Moore, junior from Atlanta, was almost unanimously named captain of Georgia's 1942 basketball team at an annual dinner party given members of the cage squad by Coach Elmer Lampe.

Coach Lampe also announced letters would go to 10 Bulldogs and two managers.

Moore's election was by the largest margin in many years. He received every vote except one, his own.

Letters were awarded to Captain Elmer Moore, Joe Killian, Bud Roland, George Poschner, Ken Keuper, 1941 Captain Dan Kirkland, Joe Bryant, Roy Chatham, Fat Hitchcock and Frankie Rents.

Captain Moore is the fourth member of his family to star athletically at Georgia. His father, Judge Virlyn Moore Sr., was a baseball hero in the early 1900's and two brothers, Virlyn Jr. and Jimmy, preceded Bobby as basketball and baseball stars for the Red and Black.

Bobby participates in baseball also, being the regular third baseman last year as a sophomore and leading the club in hitting with a mark of more than .400. He is one of the fastest athletes in the Southeastern Conference.

Statistics for the past season show Georgia scored 1,045 points, or an average of 43 per game, while holding the opposition to 970 points, an average of 40.4 per game. The Bulldogs were eliminated in the second round of the conference tournament by Tennessee, 41 to 39. The Vols went on to win the title.

Individual scoring records show Roy Chatham, flashy left-handed guard, led the scoring with 111 field goals and 44 foul shots for a total of 268. He was followed by Captain Kirkland who put together 90 field goals and 40 foul shots for 220 points. Long Joe Killian was in third place with 190 points and Moore was fourth with 188.

at 8 o'clock. This is a men's game. Ticket reservations for the show are pouring in from all over the state. Ducats may be purchased at Walthour & Hood, Adam Hat Store and Reeder & McGaughey Sporting Goods.

Bulldog Gridders Take It Easy In Preparation for Big Game

Cold Weather Halts Drills; At Least 10 Sophomores Will Be Tried in Varsity Squad of 22 Saturday.

ATHENS, Ga., March 4.—Cold weather caused cancellation of the last scheduled scrimmage of spring football practice at the University of Georgia today. Coach Wallace Butts taking no chances on not having all hands on deck for the regular intra squad game which will feature the first annual G day celebration Saturday.

The Bulldog mentor said he would have his charges out again Wednesday, but Thursday and Friday will be holidays so far as football is concerned, for the Bulldogs gridders.

"We want them to be well rested for the game Saturday, and then, too, we want them to get in some studying in preparation for examinations next week," Coach Butts said.

One change in the original squad list, which was divided into two teams, the Reds and the Whites, last Saturday, was announced today. Earl Marshall, who had been listed as an understudy to Walter Ruark at right guard on the Reds, was switched to the Whites at the same position.

Sift of Marshall was made necessary because of Harry Kuian-sky's appendectomy last Saturday. Kuian-sky had been slated to start for the Whites at right guard, but more than likely his post will be taken over by Red Boyd, a sophomore from Dalton.

Though Coach Butts has declined to name the starting lineup for either side, it is pretty generally known that at least 10 boys who were freshmen last season will be in the starting 22.

The Reds likely will lineup with two sophomores, John Brown and Duck Conger, at ends; Tommy Green and Green Keltner, tackles; Carl Grate and Walter Ruark, guards; Bill Godwin, a sophomore, center; Paul Kluk, blocking back; J. C. Miller, a sophomore, wingback; Frank Sinkwich, at tailback, and Jim Todd, fullback.

The Whites probably will have Alf and Bill Gill, sophomores, at ends; Everett Horne and Gene El-jenson, tackles; Will Burg and Red Boyd, sophomores, guards; Clyde Ehrhardt, sophomore, center; Joe Pollock, sophomore, blocking back; Lamar Davis, wingback; Heyward Allen, tailback, and Dick McPhee, a sophomore, fullback.

The game starts at 3 o'clock, Eastern Standard time, and admission will be 50 cents. All proceeds go to the Georgia Boosters' Club.

Greenies Sign Gridiron Pact With Trojans

Home and Home Agreement Announced by Athletic Officials for '42.

NEW ORLEANS, March 4.—(AP) Tulane University and the University of Southern California will meet in a home-and-home football series, the first game to be played at Los Angeles in 1942, and the second in New Orleans the following year.

Announcement of the signing was made simultaneously by Dr. Wilbur C. Smith, Tulane athletic director, and Willis O. Hunter, Trojan athletic director.

The series will mark the first time that Southern California will play a regularly scheduled game in the south and the first time since 1932, when the Green Wave lost to the Trojans in the Rose Bowl, that Tulane will journey to the far west.

Two Boat Racers Killed in Florida

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 4.—(UP)—Four men, including two of the nation's most prominent motorboat racers, were killed here today when the automobile in which they were riding failed to negotiate a curve and struck a tree.

They were Andrew A. Crawford, 55; Gardner P. Orme, 50, and James Burch Jr., all of Washington, D. C., and F. G. Ericson, 60, of Coral Gables.

Police said tonight no accurate details of the accident could be obtained, as there were no witnesses and all four men died without regaining consciousness.

Bankston Hits Homer; Teams Play to 8-8 Tie

Marshall in Fine Shape at First Drill; First Basemen Missing.

By JACK TROY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 4.—The pitching and catching outlook for the Crackers is better than it has been since Paul Richards took over as manager in 1938. Herb Crompton, up from Savannah, is a class man and a classy catcher. He is a better second-string catcher than the Crackers have had in Richards' time. In the past the Atlanta club has depended on rookies to support Richards.

The rookie catchers in camp are very good. They include Larry (Doc) Smith, who has had a previous trial with the Crackers; Pat Petrino, who caught for the club the latter part of the '40 season; Pat Bevell and Spec Dozier.

One of the rookies will be carried for the first thirty days when the Crackers will have a three-man catching staff. Just which catcher it will be remains to be seen. All four of the rookies are fine-looking prospects.

WORKS BOTH WAYS. With excellent pitching as the outlook, the Crackers also will have expert catching at all times. This is bound to make the pitching more effective.

So the Crackers are unusually well set in these important departments of the game.

The only pitcher missing is Allyn Stout, who has been delayed by illness. It is agreed that Stout can be one of the league's better pitchers. He has everything.

First Emil Mailho, field captain and then Manager Richards took the mound in the regular intra-camp game between the right-handers and the left-handers today.

It was a high scoring contest with the final score being 8-8. Mailho and Richards gave up an equal number of runs. Richards fanned Wayman Kersieck with the bases loaded to end the game.

BANKSTON HOMERS. A feature was an inside-the-park home run by T. J. Bankston, the big boy who quit L. S. U. a year ago as a great sophomore fullback. He is a right-handed pitcher.

Willard Marshall took his first workout of the season today and is in fine physical trim. He is in better shape than he was when he first reported a year ago. He is not quite as bulky around the hips. This surplus had a tendency to cut down on his speed.

Pete Thomassie, the little outfield star of the Georgia-Florida league, also had his first workout. Only Buddy Bates, who isn't due until Saturday, is missing among the regular outfielders.

Up to now the Crackers are minus a first baseman. Lester Burge still is a hold-out and Pat Petrino hasn't shown up. He'll be along any day. Burge also is expected before the week is over.

Piedmont College To Battle Trojans

The Trojan girls have accepted the challenge issued earlier in the season by the Piedmont College sextette and the two teams meet tonight at 8 o'clock on the Fulton High school court.

Both these fast girls' aggregations are nearing the end of very successful seasons on the hardwood courts and a fast and exciting game should be the result of their clash. Piedmont plays Walthour & Hood Thursday night on the Celtic show at Warren Arena. The girls' game will climax Wednesday's program of Park Department League play-off games at Fulton High.

Stone Calls on Monsieur Isabe, Both Have Heard 'Conflicting Stories'

SYNOPSIS. Jean Selden, in love with Brandon Sayre, an explorer, is dazzled by Vivian Forrest's wealth and ardent love-making. She makes no secret of her various love affairs and after two years Jean despises him, but tolerates him because of her baby, Florine. Sayre comes to a house party at palatial Forrest Fell, on Long Island, and Jean knows she still loves him. Other guests are Anne Fraser, Suzy Kirk and Peter Haskell. They and Vivian's half-brother, Austin, are practicing for a fencing tournament when Vivian invites Esmeralda Fane, a pretty movie actress, ordering that Florine's choice nursery rooms be turned over to her. He tells Jean that Esme is to be a permanent member of the household. He insists upon a daily 15-minute fencing practice with Jean, who also is an expert. After one leaves one night after fencing with Vivian, he totters; then he falls dead. There is a small foot wound on the neck, but authorities who question Jean closely, seem to think death was caused by morphine. Vivian has left a letter with a lawyer named Campbell, stating that he had his last will in his study but a long search is fruitless. Esme says she holds Jean the bulk of the estate, in a large spool in her work-basket. Austin tells her Vivian should have left her more money to help solve the murder mystery. Now go on with the story:

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

"And you know that if he had made the will he intended to, he would have left me a far greater legacy than he did."

"No, I have no way of knowing that."

"You have, in your heart, in your conscience. You know that when Viv had made that will, he was dead gone on you. He was expecting a son and heir, and he was worshipping the ground you walked on. But time changed all that. The baby was a girl, and the love between you and Vivian grew less and less, and your fancy turned back to Brandon Sayre. So much so that you invited him here to visit. That gave Vivian a chance to bring a guest of his own choice, and he brought Esme. The rest you know."

"And so do you. You know that Vivian made no other will, or he would have told us. But if he did, go to work and find it."

"Yes, that's what I want to do. Will you wait—not here, but in the probated, I mean, until I can search for another?"

Jean gave a little laugh.

"I'm afraid, Austin, I cannot consent to another of those terrible searches! If we had called Mr. Stone sooner, we would have been saved a lot of trouble. But I doubt that he would make a search for no other reason than your desire for more money."

"How unkind you are! It's all very well for you, sitting pretty with the Forrest fortune in your lap. But think of me! A brother—put off with mere pittance! I say, Jean, don't you find it in your heart to make me a—sort of present—"

"I do, Austin. I have already thought of it. As soon as the police finish their investigation, I will look into the matter of giving you a gift from the estate."

"Not good enough! How much will you give me, and when?"

"Moderate your tone, or I may not give you anything."

"Oh, I think you will. You know—there are a few things I could tell your friend Sayre that you would rather keep quiet—"

"That will do," Jean rose, and, a little frightened at the look in her eyes, Austin began to apologize.

"Don't tell me that again, Austin. Believe me, I do regret your great disappointment regarding your legacy, and I am more than willing to give you a portion of my own fortune, but I cannot attend to it until some other matters are settled, and until the police are out of the house. Now that the will is found and I am head of the house, they are going to make trouble for me in more ways than one. I am looking to you for help, and I shall not forget your kindness, if you will give it to me. We will talk of this matter again, in Mr. Stone's presence. He is well versed in legal matters and can advise us, I think, better than Mr. Campbell."

"I don't want any old sleuth to tell me what my rights are in my brother's fortune!" And now Austin was surly. "I'll get a lawyer of my own, thank you."

He left the room, very nearly slamming the door shut behind him.

Stone went to call on Monsieur Isabe, who was a guest at a country house about 20 miles from Forrest Fell.

The French fencing master, on learning who has come to see him, welcomed Stone with great cordiality.

"I have not seen much in the paper of the Forrest case," Isabe remarked, and the detective told him that it had been kept as quiet as possible.

"But," Fleming Stone went on, "there is no doubt that Forrest was murdered. However, there is a doubt as to the cause of his death and also to the identity of his murderer. I have come to you, my dear sir, in a hope that you can help me in these matters."

"Anything that I can do in the interests of Mrs. Forrest, I shall be most glad to attempt," was the Frenchman's reply.

"Then, may I ask you to give me a description of this special thrust or lunge, which is so much talked about in connection with Forrest's death. Remember, too, that I am not a fencer at all."

"Then it is more difficult to say it so you will understand. But I will do my best. The main idea is that the botto secunda is a so-called trick thrust which will win past any defense. But there is also the universal parry, which is proof against all attacks. With-out understanding more, sir, you can readily see, that these two endeavors, in the hands of experts, would be mutually effective, and therefore could result in no success for either side."

"I am told that Mr. and Mrs. Forrest had been practicing that maneuver in order to be perfect in it at the time of the tournament. Now, sir, if by some chance one of the opponents had been given some drug which would deaden his faculties, would that not make him incapable of the proper parry to the thrust, and thereby cause his collapse?"

"You are asking me a grave question, Mr. Stone. Of course, I see your unspoken thoughts. But I must say that though the drug might cause inability for the fencer to take the thrust and give the parry correctly, it is not likely that he would receive a strong enough thrust to kill him. He would fall sooner than you indicate, and he would not be killed by the thrust."

Fleming looked the French fencing master straight in the eye, and though Monsieur Isabe's gaze faltered a little, he spoke steadily enough, and gave no impression of being other than sincere.

"It is all very strange," Stone said, seeming to consider the discussion closed. "I cannot get the scene clear in my mind."

"Nor can I," the other asserted. "Is it not that you have been told conflicting stories?"

"Not conflicting, so much as vague."

"Ah, yes," Isabe nodded his head knowingly. "You see, it is the case that all had been making merry, with the wine and what-not, and as no one was thinking of death, no one was noting carefully just what went on. So, my friend, see how no one can tell the straight story!"

"That's true enough. But I must learn the straight story—maybe made up from scraps of others."

"Let us consider the motive. Who is the real suspected one?"

Fleming spoke decidedly. "There can be no question of Mrs. Forrest. I have talked with her, innocent, notwithstanding that the blonde glamor girl called her a murderess."

"Ah! the fly-by-night! The Esmeralda, so?"

"Yes, in a fit of rage, but I think she meant it as an expletive, not an accusation."

"I see. She is bad, that one. Do you know, she has been to see me?"

"Miss Fane has? On what errand?"

"You will be surprised. She came, or said she came, to learn from me the so much talked-of thrust. Stroke, she called it, as if fencing were a game of croquet."

"But you say 'she said she came' for that. What did she really come for?"

"As you may possibly have noticed, Mr. Stone, the demoiselle has an—oh, yes—has an eye to the main chance! She has indeed that! And, here is the secret. She wants something to tell that she wants to sell. She picked up some bit of information, or saw something she was not meant to see, that night of the tragedy in the studio. And she is not going to part with it for nothing. She wants a price. Is she not shrewd?"

"Indeed she is! When did you see her, monsieur?"

"I will think. Now it is Wednesday. I was at Forrest Fell on Saturday—oui, and on Sunday. It was on Tuesday she honored me with a call. Yes, it was Tuesday—in the morning. I was in New York that day, as I chanced to tell her on Sunday I would be. She was in New York, with Austin Forrest. They had some errand together, and then he left her to go elsewhere. The chauffeur brought her to me, and she stayed—perhaps the half hour. See you, she thought I would beg to know her great secret! And for a price she would tell it to me. But I did not beg! She was so disappointed, she wept. No more am I melted by the ladies' tears. Wherefore, I told the young person to stop crying and go home."

"Secret and all?"

"Oui, secret and all! Before she left, she told me that she is staying at Forrest Fell, because she is about to become affianced to Austin."

"A slight error. She is staying because the police are not quite ready to let her go. As to her marrying Austin, I am not in his confidence, but I doubt her word again."

"Ah, Mr. Austin! He is, too, the interesting character. He, too, visited me."

"When did he come, and why?"

"It was night before last."

"And what did he want?"

SMITTY HE Doesn't Take "No" for An Answer

There's Work of 'National Importance' To Suit All

By Capt. Gene Morgan.

"Of what nature is the 'work of national importance,' other than military training, to which conscientious objectors are to be assigned? Will such work be supervised by the War Department? What is the procedure used in utilizing the services of a draft registrant who has sincere religious scruples against performing any work of a military nature?"

Forestry and conservation projects, similar to or identical with those of the CCC will in the main comprise the "work of national importance" to be laid out for inducted conscientious objectors. Such work will be conducted by civilian leaders, in special camps under the general supervision of the Department of Agriculture.

According to the selective service act all men 21 to 35, inclusive, must register. (This does not, as yet, apply to men who have become 21 since the nation-wide registration October 16, 1940.) Conscientious objectors may then state their objections to service before their local boards. If upheld in their pleas, they are subject to call for special service. To such service the order of call would be determined for objectors by their draft numbers, physical fitness and other factors similar to those controlling summons to military duty.

It should be remembered that there are two classes of conscientious objectors recognized: (1) Those opposed to combatant service only but who are not opposed to noncombatant service which contributes to the health, comfort and preservation of others. (2) Those who have conscientious objection to both combatant and noncombatant service with relation to the Army.

It is the latter group, classed as IV-E, who will be assigned to tasks, purely civilian in nature, which are considered to be "of national importance."

June 21 and July 22 (CANCER)—An excellent day for dealing with the public, political matters, literary matters, dealings with publishers. A good day to ask for a raise. The best aspects of the day operate before 2:03 p. m.

July 23 and August 22 (LEO)—During the entire day and until 3:07 p. m., financial efforts and actual finances may be wasted if you give in to a feeling of too-lavish spending. After 3:07 p. m., take special care of health.

August 23 and September 22 (VIRGO)—During the entire day and until 8:21 p. m., favors work that is of an original nature and that requires independence of action. After 8:24 p. m., favors social affairs.

September 23 and October 22 (LIBRA)—This should be a favorable day for grasping opportunities and making advances. Your efficiency should be increased.

October 23 and November 21 (SCORPIO)—An excellent day to start new things that have been carefully thought out. Between 8:22 a. m. and 6:37 p. m., favors finances, business, pleasures and real estate dealings.

November 22 and December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to 1:15 p. m. favors contacting influential people. Between 1:14 p. m. and 4:26 p. m., favors attending to old matters. The remainder of the day does not especially favor new plans. An excellent time to stick to routine.

December 22 and January 19 (CAPRICORN)—Between 6:27 a. m. and 10:26 a. m., favors attending to usual pursuits, getting work done quickly. After 10:26 a. m., sudden changes should be avoided where possible. People around you may be too independent or feel rebellious with existing conditions, but this is not any time to do anything about it. After 6 p. m. favors social activities.

January 20 and February 18 (AQUARIUS)—The tendency will be to hurry through things, to answer too quickly or possibly too shortly. Guard against this tendency, else there may be much regret. The best aspects of the day operate before 4:03 p. m.

February 19 and March 20 (PISCES)—Throughout the entire day and until 6:38 p. m., use care in all business deals, dealings with professional people and associates. Pay attention to finances and avoid undue chances where money is involved.

BRAIN TRUST—Franklin P. Adams, one man brain trust of the "Information Please" program, will be armed with enough gags to gag Fred Allen when he appears as guest of the comedian on the "Star Theater" tonight at 8 o'clock over WGST.

This meeting of the famed exponents of sense and nonsense will be the second round in a bout that started when Allen was guest on "Information Please." Adams, a man who likes to get in the last verbal blow, had to take a back seat when Fred completely took over the show.

Members of the studio audience will take part in another of Allen's famous discussions at his celebrated "Round Table" as an added feature of the program.

STIRRING DRAMA—Edward G. Robinson, who has been honored by civic organizations throughout the country for his crusading dramas on "Big Town," will be heard in another thrilling-packed story of American life. Robinson will be heard as the managing editor of the Illustrated Press, while Ona Munson will play the part of his assistant, Lorelei Kilbourne, ace reporter.

JOE GETS NURSE—Hattie Macdonald, screen actress who has nursed many famous babies in pictures, will compete with the hard-hearted actor, Humphrey Bogart, for the honor of nursing Eddie Carter's mythical founding "Little Joe" during the "Time to Smile" program to be heard over WSB tonight at 8 o'clock.

"The Mad Russian" will take part in the merriment along with other distinguished artists. Dinah Shore and 13-year-old Olive Major, Eddie's recent singing discovery, will take the musical honors.

MEET MR. MEAK—Because Agatha, wife of Mr. Meek on the "Meet Mr. Meek" program, feels that her friends are living in better houses than she is, Mortimer will hunt a house during the broadcast to be heard over WGST tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

The old problem of keeping up with the Joneses will have the soft-spoken hero in a stew for a while, but he will clear up the situation by finally convincing Agatha that the house they are living in is all right after all.

SOLDIERS ON SHOW—Fort Benning soldiers will take part in the popular quiz program, "Spin and Win," during the broadcast to be heard over WAGA at 8:35 o'clock tonight.

Perry Ward, genial master of ceremonies on the show, will fire the questions at the soldiers, who will receive cash prizes for correct answers. Next week "Spin and Win" will be heard from Fort Jackson.

'Friends of Rio' Plan.

Statutes of the "Society of Friends of Rio de Janeiro" have been made public as a first step in a program to promote the interests of the Brazilian metropolis and its inhabitants. The society will collaborate with the authorities to stimulate civic spirit, cultivate the traditions and prepare for the development of the inhabitants of the city. It will start by raising certain apartment houses along the bay and sea front. These not only are shabby, but obstruct the view from near by hills.

Car Hits Elephant.

Crashing into a huge bull elephant on a turn in the Bulawayo road, 65 miles from Belt Bridge, a motorist of Messina, Rhodesia, had to run for his life. The impact shattered the windshield and the man was cut about the face by the glass. Seeing the beast towering above his car, the driver leaped out. A short distance away he was picked up by another car. Returning to the curve he saw the elephant push his car over and make off into the thick bush, trumpeting fiercely.

Many Recruits Unfit.

New Zealand is trying to determine why so many army recruits are declared unfit for service by the medical examiners. A Wellington doctor suggests that malnutrition among boys during the depression period of 1929-33 may be the cause. He reports that the physique of young men is much below the World War standard in New Zealand. Of 1,190 in one group examined recently 663 were accepted as fit, 192 were declared temporarily unfit, and 335 permanently unfit.

Air Fatalities Raised to Eight As Tappen Dies

Inquiry Into Wreck of Skyscraper Due Tomorrow.

The death yesterday of Clarence M. Tappen, 46-year-old New York attorney, brought to eight the fatalities from the crash of the Eastern Air Lines skyscraper last week in a clump of woods near Morrow.

A public hearing by the Civil Aeronautics Board to determine cause of the crash gets under way at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in a courtroom at the Old Post Office building. Testimony regarding the weather will be first on the agenda.

Meanwhile in Washington a resolution to create a special five-man house committee to investigate recent commercial air line accidents was recommended to the house by its Rules Committee.

The measure, by Representative Nichols, Democrat, Oklahoma, would direct the committee to obtain facts concerning construction of flying and ground equipment, management of air lines, laws and regulations relating to safety, and liability of the companies on account of loss of life or property.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president of the air lines, and one of the survivors of the crash, had a fair day yesterday, officials of the Piedmont hospital said in a bulletin issued last night.

"He had a fair day, and his condition is as good or slightly better than yesterday," the bulletin said. "He was a little restless at times. Today he took fluids and other nourishment. No attempt was made to place his fractured leg in a cast but it may be set within the next two days. He is still not out of danger."

In this connection, it was learned that CAB investigators may talk to Captain Rickenbacker today or tomorrow and obtain a deposition from him relative to his version of what happened on the night the giant sleeper plane crashed a few miles from Morrow.

Mrs. Rickenbacker, who has been in Atlanta since her husband was injured, told investigators she believed her husband would be strong enough to talk to them in a day or two.

Captain Rickenbacker's deposition will be among those from survivors read at the formal inquiry, to be held in a courtroom of the old postoffice building.

Jerome Lederer and Grant Mason, of the CAB, who will conduct the hearing, are due in Atlanta by plane from Washington some time today, and a report on the plane's propeller and engines, which were sent to Miami for examination, is also due today, it was said.

Tappen, pinned beneath the wreckage, had remained in a critical condition since the accident.

A graduate of Princeton University, Tappen attended the Columbia Law School. As an undergraduate he achieved the distinction of being selected as chairman of the Columbia Law Review.

Since graduation he had engaged in the practice of law in New York city, first being associated with the firm of Elihu Root, Clark, Buckner & Howland. His present connection was with the firm of Kellogg & Emery.

He was a member of the New York Bar Association and counsel for the American Oil Company. He also was a member of the Holland Society of New York.

Surviving are his wife, daughter, Miss Katherine Tappen; two sons, David and John Tappen, all of Nutley, N. J.; a sister, Miss Helen Tappen, of Asheville, N. C., and a brother, Irwin Tappen, of Hackensack, N. J.

The body will be taken by H. M. Patterson & Son today to Nutley for funeral and burial.

Senator Dobbs' Bill Is Given Approval

The Senate State of the Republic Committee yesterday voted out favorably, without a dissenting ballot, a bill by Senator E. O. Dobbs and others to reapportion Georgia's 159 counties into 52 more equal senatorial districts.

It was drafted by a 12-man committee, headed by Dobbs, which was appointed three weeks ago to work out some arrangement whereby each senatorial district might have an equal representation in the general assembly.

New Method Of Yellow Line Parking Found

Here's a new way to park on a yellow line and not pay a $3 fine. Get yourself a giant placard warning all policemen: "Emergency; Government Business."

Order of the Chief of Police. If you can swing it, toss in a couple of gaudy plates proclaiming: "Governor's Staff." That's all that is necessary.

Fun For Awhile. It's great fun—at least until somebody begins to check up on where you got that sign.

Several cars with such signs have appeared recently against the yellow zone areas. One found yesterday was at the Walton street entrance of the postoffice building.

The driver of the car explained: "I'm a draft board member. I have to get papers signed in a hurry." He pointed vaguely at the post office, headquarters of the Fourth Corps Area.

Draft Board Dubious. Draft board headquarters, at the State Military Department, were a little dubious.

Said Colonel H. Cliff Hatcher, assistant director of selective service in Georgia: "I know of no one who has authority to use such a sign. Besides, no member of a local draft board has any papers to get signed in the federal building."

Chief Hornsby, of the Police Department, said: "I issued three such signs. One was sent to the fire department, another to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the third to the state draft board headquarters."

Pardoned Woman Loses Court Plea

Habeas corpus petition of Mary Johnson, who was rearrested after she received a conditional pardon from Governor Rivers, was denied yesterday in Fulton superior court by Judge Walter C. Hendrix.

The woman contended through her attorneys her pardon is still good and valid and that the conditional fine imposed in it can be paid any time. Bond Almand, solicitor of Fulton criminal court, contended the fine of $50 was not paid within a reasonable time, thus voiding the pardon. Judge Hendrix upheld Almand's contention.

The Gentleman--

From Laurens ... From Upson ... From Bryan ...

Representative Dawson Kea, of Laurens.

Representative Dawson Kea, of Laurens county, Dublin, is serving his first term in the house of representatives and his second term as recorder for the city of Dublin. He is an attorney, superintendent of the Dublin First Methodist Sunday school and thinks that education is the most important function of the state government. The 34-year-old son says he's enjoying the legislature and likes every member in the house of representatives.

Representative J. L. Bentley, of Upson.

Representative J. L. Bentley, of Upson county, Thomaston, is a farmer, dairyman, and grocer. He is a great believer in the Talmadge administration and is doing everything in his power to uphold the Governor's policies while he is serving in the lower body of the general assembly. He believes in economy in state government and is a strong advocate of paying the school teachers in full and on time. The 37-year-old legislator is the father of three sons and one daughter.

Representative L. C. Gill, of Bryan.

Representative L. C. Gill, of Bryan county, is serving his second term in the lower body of the Georgia general assembly. He believes in practical economy of all state affairs. "I am especially proud," he says, "to represent my county and my greatest desire is to be of service to my state." He wants a form of government, efficient in every sense, and one not weighted with increased tax burdens on the citizens.

'Long' Forecast Generally Fair

The weatherman took a long-range look at the weather yesterday—and came up with good news.

According to the forecast of conditions which will prevail through Sunday in Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas, a general fair spell was predicted. There may be moderate showers, however, near the end of the five-day period in the north portion of the state.

Temperature will be below normal in Georgia, the Carolinas and Florida at the beginning of the period, but are expected to rise above normal by the end of the period, the forecaster added.

Community Fund Leaders Meet Thursday

Richard Rich Will Outline Plans for 1941 Drive.

Civic forces concerned in maintaining the Atlanta Community Fund as the city's biggest volunteer enterprise will be represented at the annual meeting of the fund organization tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock at Rich's tearoom.

Contributors, workers who conduct the yearly appeal, citizens directing the 34 agencies, which share the fund, and trustees who serve on the year-round board, will attend to hear of 1940 reports and elect 1941 leaders.

G. K. Selden, chairman of the board; J. S. Roberts, budget committee member, and Boyce M. Edens, director-secretary, will review the situation confronting the group of independent agencies serving in key sectors of the local welfare field.

Final figures resulting from last fall's campaign to enlist public support of the fund, a summary of the human dividends produced by the 1940 fund and an appraisal of the unmet needs still unprovided for in the community will make up the brief speaking program.

Richard H. Rich, already named general chairman heading the 1941 appeal, will outline steps under way for organizing a successful drive next fall.
